FROM WASHINGTON.

Our Negotiations with New-Granada—Survey of the Islands in the Bay of Panama—The Extradition Treaty with the Netherlands, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

Information has been received here that Hon. ISAAC N. MOSES, the Special Minister of the United States to Bogota, examined the islands in the Bay of Panama, on the 16th December, in company with Consul A. B. COWPER and Commodore MERVINE. It will be remembered that Mr. MOSES's instructions direct him to negotiate with the Government of New-Granada for the cession to the United States of municipal control over certain of these islands, as well as over the transit route.

Mr. M. does not conceal the fact that the United States Government looks to the early establishment of a naval depôt in the Bay of Panama. He also admits the substantial accuracy of the statement made by the TIMES, some weeks ago, in relation to the demands he is to make of the Government at Bogota.

It was Mr. M.'s opinion when he left Panama that he would close his business up with the Government of New-Granada within six weeks—an expectation which did not raise his judgment in the estimation of those who are familiar with the temporizing, procrastinating habits of the people with whom he has to deal.

The President sent to the Senate last year an Extradition Treaty with the Government of Netherlands, which had been negotiated by AUGUST BELMONT. The convention doubtless was originally drawn in the Dutch language; but BELMONT's translation of it turns out to be neither Dutch, English nor Sanscrit. Upon examination by the Senate its language is found so shockingly bad and so uncertain, that the Committee on Foreign Relations will not report it for confirmation.

The President, who did not discover the incoherence and illegibility of the document before he sent it to the Senate, is now so ashamed of it that he desires to withdraw it, which he will probably be permitted to do. It is to be hoped that, under the next Administration, our representatives abroad will, at least, be sufficiently conversant with the language of their own country to be able to put a simple treaty into intelligible shape.

The Navy Department is satisfied that the transfer of the new and old crews of the St. Marys at Panama, via the Panama Railroad, was effected in the most satisfactory manner,—thus establishing by practical experiment the wisdom of the new policy in the management of our Pacific Squadrons, inaugurated by Secretary DOBBIN.

A letter just received here from a lady friend of Mr. SUMNER, states that he proposes to start for Washington on Monday next; also that he is gaining very slowly, and still complains of much suffering in his back upon exertion.

Numerous memorials are pouring in from New-York, Boston, and other shipping ports, protesting against the passage of a law compelling all vessels to adopt ROGERS' universal code of marine signals. The remonstrants generally admit the great value of the code, but protest against the compulsory use. It would seem to be quite as reasonable to protest against the compulsory inspection of steamboat boilers, the carrying of life-boats, &c., &c. S.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Dec. 30, 1856.

CABINET SPECULATIONS.

It is comparatively useless to attempt any intelligent speculations as to the Cabinet of Mr. BUCHANAN, for the programme changes so frequently that to-day's arrangement is quite at fault to-morrow. This is necessarily so, as the President elect will not, and cannot well definitely settle upon his Cabinet advisers so long in advance. These points should be borne in mind by those who take interest in the various speculations as to the Cabinet which are thrown out, and not charge to the correspondents any disappointment their expectations may sustain in the premises.

THE STATE AND TREASURY DEPARTMENTS.

Some time since I contradicted the rumor that Mr. CASS had been tendered and had accepted the position of Secretary of State. My contradiction was based upon that gentleman's own unequivocal denial of the statement. It is nevertheless true that he is talked of for the State Department, and, judging by present appearances, there is little doubt that he will be the Premier, a fact from which Lord PALMERSTON, doubtless, will borrow a world of trouble, as these venerable statesmen waste no love for each other. Mr. COBB, of Georgia, was mentioned occasionally for the Chair of State, but will be set down for the Treasury Department, unless something should occur to prevent Mr. CASS from accepting the Premiership, in which event Mr. COBB's chances of the latter place are promising.

MESSRS. TOUCEY, CLIFFORD AND BRIGHT.

Mr. TOUCEY of Connecticut, seems likely to realise the vanity of human hopes, and the truth of the Scripture declaration that, "The last shall be first, and the first last." The first man set down with certainty for a place in the new Cabinet, it is now pretty well settled that he must give place to Hon. NATHAN CLIFFORD of Maine, who will be tendered the only Cabinet appointment allotted to New-England. Mr. BRIGHT still stands firm for the State Department if he fails of reflection to the Senate from Indiana; and Messrs. BUSH and BENJAMIN are talked of as among the foremost candidates from the far South. I mistake the man greatly if the Senator from Texas would accept any Cabinet position.

COMPOSE FOR THE NEW-YORK OLIGARCHY.

New-York parties certainly occupy a good deal of Mr. BUCHANAN's thoughts for the reason that they are thrust upon his attention by the hords of greedy spoils-hunters. When the appointments come to be made, you will find that the new President has struck at the root of the trouble among the New-York cliques. FOWLER, MCKEON, and every other Federal office-holder of high grade in your City, will find himself a head shorter very soon after the 4th of March. The policy of letting each man serve out the full term for which appointed has been abandoned; and unless Mr. BUCHANAN's present good resolutions fail him, the new appointees will be selected from among the sterling men of the Democratic Party—men whom office will seek and who will honor the office. The old party hacks will all be thrown overboard; and the man who clamor most for reward of past services to the party will be forgotten. The Collectorship has already been tendered (unofficially, of course) to J. H. BROWN, Esq., who declines. For the Surveyorship offices are now making to secure the services of a wealthy gentleman of high standing in your City, who, though living in a largely Republican district, came within less than fifty votes of being elected to office at the late election. These constitute examples of what is the present purpose of Mr. BUCHANAN. All good citizens will hope that he may "hold fast to the faith."

THE LANDS COMMITTEE AND PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The story that the Committee on Public Lands of the House has agreed to report in favor of giving the Southern Pacific Railroad grant to the N. Butler King & Robert J. Walker Company is erroneous. Nothing has yet been definitely decided upon; nevertheless the proposition is entertained and considered, instead of being executed as some so it ought to be.

THE NEW BRIGADIER-GENERAL.

The announcement that Gen. BURTON had been nominated for the new Brigadier-Generalship to succeed by last Congress took the Senate rather by surprise to-day. It will be remembered that when the act creating the office was before Congress, it was generally understood that it was to be filled by the nomination of General SHIELDS, whose personal popularity alone carried the measure. SHIELDS was much disappointed at his failure to receive the appointment, but took it philosophically, went out West, turned his sword into a ploughshare, and is prospering exceedingly in the peaceful life of an agriculturist.

Our National Theatre is about to pass into the hands of a lady manager, Miss FANNY MOWATT, who has just taken the lease, and will reopen the house tomorrow night. Miss MOWATT is a great favorite at the capital, and possesses the combination of youth, beauty, wit and talent essential to success in the arduous enterprise in which she is about to embark. She opens the season with the new drama of "Masks and Faces," in which she sustains the character of Peg Woffington. S.

Fires.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AT PATERSON, N. J.

PATERSON, Wednesday, Dec, 31.

A destructive fire occurred here last night, on the corner of Main and Van Houten streets. Eight stores were totally consumed, together with the entire contents. The stores of VANDERCOOT & BRYNER, dry goods; A. STOUTENBURGH, dry goods; W. TUNISON, dry goods; Mr. KIRK, bakery; a store store adjoining; S. ALLEN, tobacconist; JAMES DUNN, confectioner; Mrs. KELLY, variety store; BEAN & TAYLOR, shoes and boots, were considerably damaged by water; also several other buildings across the street, were more or less damaged by fire and water. The total loss is estimated at $50,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

FIRE AT AKRON, OHIO.

BUFFALO, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The Beacon office, at Akron, Ohio, was burned on Monday morning, together with Messrs. BEEBE & ELKIN's Bookstore, WILMORE & Co.'s Agricultural store, and BOWEN & BARBER's Grocery store. Several adjoining buildings were also greatly injured.

FIRE AT LOUISVILLE, KY.

LOUISVILLE, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The Medical Department of the University of Louisville was destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is covered by insurance, and enough of the apparatus was saved to enable the lecturer to be continued in the Law Department adjoining.

FIRE AT MILAN, OHIO.

CLEVELAND, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The grist-mill and saw-mill of Messrs. MERRIT & GAY, at Milan, Ohio, together with MERRIT & ELKINS's block factory, were burnt yesterday morning. The former's loss is estimated at from $12,000 to $15,000—the latter's at $5,000. No insurance.

Another Boat of the Lycoming Picked Up at Sea.

HALIFAX, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The brig Beauty, from Jamaica, arrived at Halifax on Saturday night, reports that on the outward voyage on Nov. 9, lat. 40°, saw a whale-boat, bottom up, starboard side stove and oars lashed to thwarts, with a lugsail mast floating alongside. The boat contained a cask of water and a life-buoy marked "Le Lycoming, Havre," also a white shirt and a fine cambric handkerchief, marked "F. E."

From St. Louis.

THE MISSOURI LEGISLATURE—ARREST FOR FOR GREY.

ST. LOUIS, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The Missouri Legislature organized permanently yesterday. W. D. MCCRACKEN, Democrat, was chosen Secretary of the Senate, and ROBERT HARRISON, Democratic Whig, Speaker of the House. The Bentonites and Americans fused in opposition to the Democrats.

E. C. DAVIS, late Superintendent of Public Schools, has been arrested here for forgeries on various persons and banking-houses, amounting to $13,000.

Ocean Steamers.

SAILING OF THE CANADA FROM BOSTON.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The Royal Mail steamship Canada sailed for Halifax and Liverpool at 19 o'clock to-day, with 11 passengers for the former and 39 for the latter port. Among the passengers for Halifax was CYRUS W. FIELD, Esq., of New-York, who goes to Newfoundland to make arrangements in connection with the proposed trans-Atlantic telegraph cable. Mr. FIELD will return probably in about two weeks. The Canada takes out about $213,000 in specie.

ARRIVAL OF THE KANGAROO AT PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The screw steamship Kangaroo, from Liverpool on the 17th instant, is signaled off Cape Island. Her advices are the same as those by the Fulton at New York.

THE ALABAMA AT SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Tuesday, Dec. 30.

The steamer Alabama, from New-York, arrived here to-day.

THE NASHVILLE AT CHARLESTON.

CHARLESTON, Tuesday, Dec. 30.

The U. S. Mail steamship Nashville arrived here at 7 o'clock on Monday night.

Railroad Casualty.

NEW-HAVEN, Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The 7 o'clock train from New-York this morning struck a covered wagon near Milford, in which were WM. KELSEY and GILBERT NEWTENSON, instantly killing KELSEY and nearly killing NEWTENSON. Both belonged in Milford.

THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE

ARRIVAL OF THE NIAGARA AT HALIFAX.

The Paris Congress not yet Assembled.

Great Preparations of Prussia Against Switzerland.

Strong Feeling in England Against the Persian War.

THE FALL OF HERAT CONFIRMED.

Further Reduction in the Bank of England's Rate of Discount.

Advance in Cotton—Breadstuffs Dull and Lower.

Consols 94@94 1-8.

[By the American Printing Telegraph Company's Lines. Office No. 21 Wall-street.]

HALIFAX, Thursday, Jan. 1.

The R. M. steamship Niagara, from Liverpool at 3 P. M. on Saturday, the 20th ult., arrived here last night, at 11:30 P. M. Her dates are three days later than those received by the Fulton, at New-York.

The Niagara passed the American ships Nehemiah Stephen Crowell and Pioneer, going into Liverpool, Dec. 23, lat. 51°, lon. 25°, passed steamship Arabia, bound East.

The Collins steamer Princess arrived at Liverpool on Friday evening, Dec. 19.

The ship Dreadnought arrived at Liverpool also on the 19th ult., bringing one day's later news.

The steamer Persia arrived in the Mersey at 7 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 30. The greatest speed that she attained on her passage was 309 miles in 24 hours.

A steam-tug had arrived from the wrecked ship Adriatic, and reported that should the weather keep moderate there was every sign of the ship coming off without much damage.

The Congress of Paris.

It was still supposed that the Congress of Paris would reassemble before the New Year, but nothing official had been stated. Count WALEWSKI, it is said, proposes that some compensation should be given to Russia for the loss of Bolgrade, and Russia proposes to accept a piece of land between the River Tulpuk and one of its tributaries. A Paris dispatch says that Austria is the only power that has not yet named a representative to the Congress, but Baron HUBNER will probably represent Austria and Baron BRUNO Russia.

Great Britain.

Transports are being taken up in England for reinforcements to the Indian expedition against Persia. Eight regiments have orders to be in readiness.

Captain HARTSTEIN and the officers and crew of the Resolute are to return home in a British ship. From want of time, they had to decline invitations to dine with the Geographical Society and other public bodies. Three thousand persons visited the Resolute after the Queen left. The Queen sent £100 to be distributed among the crew.

A great meeting had been held at Birmingham to protest against the continuance of the war income tax. Resolutions were passed that the law, in its present form, is unjust, oppressive, degrading, and not to be tolerated by a free people. The movement is spreading to other parts of the country.

France.

An editorial in the Moniteur, on the Neufchatel affair, had attracted considerable attention. It speaks in harsh terms respecting Switzerland.

The Prince of Prussia, presently at Paris, is the bearer of an autograph invitation to the Emperor NAPOLEON to visit Berlin in the Spring. It is said the Emperor has accepted the invitation.

A deputation of Moldo-Wallachian Boyards, in Paris, have presented addresses to the Emperor in favor of the union of the Principalities.

Several of the French papers are advocating the establishment of a Government line of steamers. The Constitutionnel says the present state of the money market is the sole barrier. The Siècle proposes a Government subsidy to the existing Trans-Atlantic steamers, and adds that Government is about to reconsider the question of a Trans-Atlantic line—a question that has been adjourned so often, and which catastrophies, such as the loss of the steamers Pacific the City of Philadelphia, and the Lyonnais, render more than ever indispensable.

Spain.

Madrid advices are to the 15th of December. The Madrid Gazette contains an article appointing M. Mow Ambassador to the Court of Rome.

Germany.

A Berlin letter states that the Prussian note relative to Neuchatel would be read to the Germanic Diet on the 18th of December.

Prussia.

Prussia is making great preparations to move against Switzerland. Considerably more than two army corps, as at first intended, will be mobilized for immediate service.

Switzerland.

A Paris dispatch says a friendly power (not named) is understood to have suggested that Switzerland should be required to accede to Prussia's demand for the release of the Neufchâtel prisoners by a collective note from the powers which signed the protocol of London. This would enable Switzerland to make an honorable retreat.

Italy.

A Sardinian loan of sixty million livres is talked of.

A Te Deum was celebrated at Milan for the escape of the King of Naples from assassination. The Austrian Archdukes and all the officers assisted.

Naples.

Correspondence from Naples continues an account of the trial and last moments of MILANO. When asked how long he had contemplated this act, he replied: "ever since the King perjured himself." On the scaffold his demeanor was firm. The soldiers his battalion were deeply moved, some under their officers wept. Some of the English residents at Naples have presented a letter of congratulation to the King.

Austria.

The state of public feeling is reported to be so bad in Hungary that the Austrian Heads of Departments are to meet in consultation on the subject.

Persia.

The death of the Shah's young son prevented a six days' rejoicing, which was to have been held at Teheran, on account of the fall of Herat. The British citizens in Teheran are placed under the protection of the Turkish Embassy.

THE LATEST.

The failure of ROBERT JOHNSON & Co. warehousemen, London, and GERMAN ASPINWALL & Co. manufacturers, Manchester, are announced. The liabilities of the latter are $160,000.

The fall of Herat, from Cabul sources is confirmed. Accounts show the defence to have been bravely maintained. The city was only given up when all hope of defending it successfully had disappeared. In England a strong feeling is gotil ng up, inimical to the war with Persia, arising out of this siege. A meeting had been held at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, to denounce the piratical expedition against Persia, and on Friday night bills were posted about London warning soldiers against taking part in this piratical invasion of Persia."

Sicily reposed tranquil. Baron BENTIVEGNA is a prisoner in the hands of the royal authorities. Many other persons have been suspected and arrive every day in Palermo.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Liverpool Cotton Market.

The Brokers' Circular reports an improved demand for Cotton, at an advance of 1-16 @ 1/8 principally on the lower qualities. Fair and middling qualities were stiffer, but only limited lots of white sold. The week's business is 7,000 and exports to date of 1857 are 1,000 bales. Sales to-day include 2,000 bales including 1,000 for speculation and for export, the market closing firm and unclear at the following quotations:

Fair Orleans	7 1/8	Middling	6 3/8
Middling	[illegible]	Fair Uplands	7 3/8
Fair Mobile	7 1/8	Middling	6 7/8

The stock at Orleans was estimated at 541,000 bales, of which 315,000 was American.

Liverpool Breadstuffs Market.

The Brokers' circular reports Breadstuffs generally depressed. Wheat sold 2d. lower in parcels on the week. Flour—Little inquiry, and prices weak, at a decline of 6d @ 1s. Corn 2d. and 3d. lower. Messrs. Richardson, Spence & Co. quote as follows: Red Wheat, 8s. @ 8s. 9d.; White, 8s. @ 9s. 1d; Western Canal Flour 35s. 6d. @ 36s. 6d; Baltimore and Philadelphia 31s. @ 32s. 6d; Ohio 34s. @ 36s.; Mixed Corn 36s. 6d.; Yellow 32s. 9d.; White 34s.

Liverpool Provision Market.

Messrs. Richardson, Spence & Co. report Beef and Pork very dull. Bacon—Heavy. Lard—Trifling sales, and quotations nominal at 52s. Tallow—Steady—sales 38s. 3d. @ 38s. 6d.

Liverpool Produce Market.

The Brokers' Circular reports common Rosin slightly easier, and quotations unchanged. The sales of the week 4,000 bbls. at 4s. 6d. @ 4s. 7d., and 4s. 9d. @ 5s., for a better quality; and 7s. @ 8s. for medium. Fine Rosin is selling at 10s. @ 12s. 6d. Nothing doing in Turpentine or Tar. Ashes—Quiet and unchanged—Pots, 47s. @ 48s.; Pearls, 48s. @ 50s. Cocoa-nuts Rare—Steady. Palm Oil—Selling at £43 10s. @ £46. Olive Oil—Active, with an advancing tendency.—Gallipoli is quoted at £97, and Spanish £89 @ £93; Lisbon, £88 @ £89 5s.

Drugs—Quiet, except for Logwood, which was slightly cheaper. Saltpetre, 1,000 bags sold at reduced quotations. Cod Oil, a large home demand, at £35. Rape Oil, quiet and unchanged. Butters or Turpentine, small sales, at 40s. @ 42s. Tallow—Improved demand, and large sales, sinking in former rates. Sugar, quiet and slightly cheaper. Nothing doing in Molasses. Coffee—Limited business at former rates. Rice, steady.

London Money Market.

The Money Market had become decidedly easier, and the Bank of England had reduced its rates to 4 per cent. The bullion in the Bank had increased during the week to the extent of £206,000. Consols for money were steady, on account of the approaching dividend payment. For account, they closed on Saturday afternoon, 20th ult., at 94@94¼.

London Markets.

Messrs. Baring Bros. & Co. report an active demand for Welsh Iron, at £7 15s. @ £8 for bars; Scotch Pig selling at 72s. 6d. @ 72s. Sugar slightly lower. Coffee steady. Saltpetre very dull.

American Securities.

Messrs. Baring Bros. report the market for American Securities generally unchanged. The chief business transacted being in Illinois Central Railroad Bonds, of which Freeman's were selling at 99@101, and shares at 14@16¾ premium; United States stock of '40 held for 104, Canada stock, 112¾@114.

The Latest Markets.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday, Dec. 20—3 P. M.

The Porter's news caused an advance in Cotton of 1-16d. @ 1/8. The business to-day is estimated at as much as 10,000 bales, of which speculators took 2,000. The market closed with an active demand. Breadstuffs quiet and generally unchanged. Provisions also are unaltered.

Passengers.

In steamship Niagara, at Halifax—Mr. Haigh, lady and child, Mr. Bell and son, Messrs. Murray, Robinson, Morrison, Hulbert, Chasburn, Gordon, Grover, Beckmann, Soar, Prain, Lang, Doane, Kavanagh, Barry, Iswell, Culkins, Clark, Dogroff, Dyson, Low, Esmond, Dill, Burrows.

The Indians in Florida.

Key West Correspondence of the Savannah Georgian.

We have late arrivals from Cape Florida, where two companies of the 3d Artillery are stationed. No Indians have been seen by the soldiers, although fresh traces were discovered. The troops were occupied in cutting roads along the borders of the everglades. White flags have been placed at proper intervals, to attract the attention of the Indians. Thus far they have taken no friendly notice of them. The flags of truce, at the edge of the Indian track, have many of them been pulled down by the savages, who, by this means, express their determination to hold no intercourse with General HARNEY.

The United States steamship Fashion, Captain BARNES, arrived at this port the 21st from New-York, en route for the west coast of Florida. She will at once proceed to Charlotte Harbor, where she will find orders from General HARNEY. They will join their respective regiments, now in the field. Surgeon STORROW, long assistant to the garrison in this city, having been ordered to Fort Dallas, will be relieved by assistant Surgeon JOHNS at an early day.

THE FATHER OF TWENTY CHILDREN.—About a year ago, Mr. JAMES HARMON, of Concord township, in this county, informed us that he was the father of twenty-nine children, and that he was not without hope that he would yet be blessed with the thirtieth. Well, sure enough, (as old Williams would say,) the old gentleman was in town the other day, and told us that his wife had presented him with his thirtieth child! It is a fine boy, and has been named after our bachelor friend, SIMEON WEAVER. Mr. HARMON is in his 72d year, was one of the early pioneer settlers of the county, and is remarkably active for a man of his years, as will readily be inferred. He has been married twice. By his first wife he had thirteen children, twelve of whom he raised. By his second wife, who is 40 years of age, he had had seventeen children, and his battalion were deeply moved, some under their officers wept. Some of the English residents at Naples have presented a letter of congratulation to the King.—Urbana (Ohio) Citizen.

REPORTED CAPTURE OF A BRITISH VESSEL BY SPANISH PIRATES.—There is a very general report in this town that the vessel which Captain TAWTON, of Poole, commanded, is in the hands of the pirates. It is said that they were coming from the West Indies with a cargo of logwood, and when in the Spanish Main they were literally besieged by swarms of these sea robbers who infest that part. The pirates, it is said, commandeered the vessel, taking from the captain all his chards and the compass, and from the crew every article they possessed; and, and sailing with the vessel, they proceeded to Cuba, and succeeded to "walk the plank" on board the boat. This horrible alternative is said they chose; and it is further reported that they landed passengers on the beach, and are under the protection of the Spanish Consul. The vessel was a three-masted schooner, and belonged to Whittstable.—Poole Herald.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.—WILLIAM T. BRADY, the murderer of Dr. Cornelius, who was the Virginia Mail agent in St. Louis, a short time since, and who escaped, he is a native of quite a romantic family. He is a nephew of the Mr. Brady who was killed in Franklin, Ky., many years ago, by BRANDAMAN, and the trial and story of which, at the time and long afterwards, occupied so much of the public attention.

The mail steamer Niagara, from Boston, arrived at Liverpool early on the morning of the 20th. By this vessel the President's message was received in England.

The United States mail steamship Northern Light, from New-York on the 20th November, entered off Cowes in the night of the 16th ult.

An accident to her machinery had occasioned the return to Southampton of the United States ship Steamer Hermann, which left that port the 2nd ult. with the English, French, and German mails, on the 2d of December. The Hermann encountered the most terrible weather in the Atlantic, the wind blowing a perfect hurricane for most part of the time, and the seas running mountains high. Wind ranged at 1,200 miles from Southampton, the vessel labored heavily and but just able to make headway against the gale, the centre shaft carrying the entire brunt of one of the engine broke, and the shaft through the piston of the port engine, entirely disabling it. The ship was thus made completely dependent upon the power of the remaining engine. It is a most providential circumstance that the perfect discipline prevailing on board the Hermann, and in the engine department, averted a serious disaster to be of no injury to the vessel. The slightest delay in unguarding and stopping the machinery would probably have broken the other engine, and the Hermann would then have been left to the mercy of the waves. As it was, the work of the broken machine was quickly disengaged, and the hull of the ship put about for Southampton, steaming with one engine driving both paddle-wheels. The Hermann arrived at Southampton on the evening of the 16th ult. The passengers have signed a testimonial to Capt. HIGGINS, expressive of their admiration of the great seamanlike skill, courage, and praiseworthy conduct displayed by him throughout the whole of this trying period. The Hermann's mails and passengers were forwarded to their destination by the Fulton, and the valuable cargo, after being overhauled, would be reshipped by the agents, Messrs. Grinnell & Co., with every practicable speed.

Several other mail steamers from Liverpool and Southampton, had put back to port damaged during the late violent westerly and southwesterly gales, which had been very destructive in their course.

The controversy respecting the extraordinary story about "Railways and Revolvers in Georgia," is continued in the London Times, which published the narrative. In that journal of the 19th December, another letter appears from Mr. Ainsworth, in which he strongly persists "that the whole of his narrative is substantially true, and that the outrage described actually took place." He says: "Never should I lay to publish an account of these outrages, if I did not provide myself (as I might have done on the spot) with any evidence; nor did I hesitate to have the name and address of any of my informants, in order to obtain evidence afterwards; therefore my narrative stands unsupported." The Times winds up an editorial article in reference to this letter, by saying "If so strange a story were told us by the most respectable man in England, we should be very much surprised, and think of that most respectable man pretty much what we are compelled to think of Mr. Jesse Ainsworth—that he was under an hallucination." So stands the Georgian Railway Revolver controversy.

The old Arctic discovery ship Resolute, purchased by an American whaleship, and presented to the British nation by the United States Congress, arrived at Spithead on the 12th of December, under the command of Captain HARTSTEIN, of the United States Navy. She was under American colors, but on hoisting her anchors the British ensign was run up alongside the American; and on the following day, exchange salutes being fired, the Resolute changed her colors to British. On the morning of the 16th, Captain HARTSTEIN landed at Portsmouth, and paid official visits to Chevalier PAPPALARDO, the United States Vice-Consul, and the military and civil authorities. An invitation to a banquet, from the Corporation and inhabitants of Portsmouth, has been accepted by the Captain and officers, but the day is not yet fixed, and every mark of respect has been paid to the American officers.

The Resolute was towed up to Cowes on Monday, the Queen having intimated her wish to pay a visit to the vessel, and the steam-frigate Retribution was sent up to salute on the occasion, and several gunboats and other ships were stationed in the Roads.

The Queen and Prince Albert, accompanied by some of the royal children, paid their visit about 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, the 16th, the English and American flags flying at the peak of the Resolute, while the royal standard was hoisted at the main or mizzen. Her Majesty stepped on board, flags Hermann received the royal party, the officers being grouped on either side in full uniform. The Resolute returned to Portsmouth on the following day.

VISIT OF THE QUEEN TO THE RESOLUTE—AN INTERESTING SCENE.

From the London Times, Dec. 17.

Yesterday afternoon the Queen and Prince Albert inspected the discovery ship Resolute, which is now lying off Cowes, in the Medina water; but, before narrating the circumstances of the Royal visit, it may not be inappropriate, as this is peculiarly the age of "antecedents," to glance at the past history of that remarkable craft and be present in a consecutive form, some facts, respecting her which are not generally known, and others which, though they have already been published, are too interesting to suffer by repetition.

Her Majesty's pack Resolute formed one of Sir Edward Belcher's squadron of discovery, and in May, 1852, was dispatched, under the command of Capt. Kellett, R.N., to the Polar Seas, in search of Sir John Franklin, and for scientific purposes. She was—or, since her delivering enabled us to speak of her as of a ship restored to life, let us rather say she was—a fine square-built vessel of 500 tons. She is double-decked and double-planked throughout, in order to withstand the pressure of ice, and she carries two brass guns—six-pounders. Her builders, having regard to the comfort of her officers and crew in the Arctic seas, fitted her with an ingenious heating apparatus, the furnace of which is inserted in the mainhold, while steam-pipes, running fore and aft through the body of the vessel, maintained an agreeable temperature even when the thermometer had fallen much below zero. When she left the Government dock-yard she was liberally provided with everything requisite for her perilous voyage and, both as regards structure and equipment, was admirably adapted for the service in which she was to be engaged. Owing to her peculiar build, she is necessarily a dull sailer, but she is a very strong ship, and what the Americans call "a good, safe seaboat." Notwithstanding, however, the care bestowed on her construction, she was not fated to fulfill the purposes for which she was designed. She was frozen in among the icebergs in latitude 77° N., and in the month of May, 1854, her officers and crew finally abandoned her, leaving their effects on board. She had remained in the icebergs 16 months, when a large portion of the ice in which she was imbedded becoming detached from the mass by a thaw, it floated off with her, leaving her at the mercy of wind and wave, and hurrying her out to remote seas, where, in latitude 65° 20' and longitude 64°, she was found in the month of September, 1855, by the American whaler George Henry, commanded by Captain Buddington. She had, then drifted over the wilderness of waters about 1,400 miles from the spot where she was abandoned. Captain Buddington and a part of his crew approached her over the ice and took up their quarters within her. They found "a death-like silence and a dread repose," for, except themselves, there was not a living creature on board. In the words of Dr. Maccoy, the surgeon of the ship, who has written a pretty poem on the subject:

"Her wooden walls were tenantless,
No more the busy throng
Cheered the lone decks through Arctic nights
With music and with song.
The bold and gallant crew had fled
Had once the gladly bore,
In search of Franklin and his men,
From Albion's happy shore."

The ship was not found to have sustained any very material damage. The ropes, indeed, were hard, and inflexible as chains; the rigging was stiff, and crackled at the touch; the tanks in the hold had burst, the iron work was rusted, the paint was discolored with bilge-water, and the topmast and topgallantmast were shattered, but the hull had escaped unscathed, and the ship was not hurt in any vital part. There were three or four feet of water in the hold, but she had not sprung a leak. The cordage was coiled in neat little circles on the deck, after the fashion of English seamen, and the sails were frozen to such stiffness as to resemble sheets of tin. Several thousand pounds of gunpowder were found on board, somewhat deteriorated in quality, yet good enough for such purposes as firing salutes. Some of the scientific instruments were injured by exposure and rust; but others were in excellent condition. For a year and four months no human foot had trod the deck of that phantom ship, yet, amid those savage solitudes, where man there was none, and might never be, the pilot's wheel made a stern proclamation, for around it were inscribed in letters of brass the immortal words "England expects that every man will do his duty." If for "duty" had been printed the word "seal" or "whale," the sentiment might have had a more practical significance. Captain Buddington remained on board till the ice set in, and then, when the ice began to soften, he shaped his course to New-London, Connecticut, where he arrived in December, 1855. The Resolute was removed without delay to New-York, and what followed is so honorable to the American Government, and speaks so highly for their courtesy towards this country, that, though it has been often published, it may well be repeated, for it should be universally known throughout England. A sum of $40,000 was appropriated, with the concurrence of the Senate and Congress, for the purpose of purchasing the Resolute from the whalers, the English Government having waived all claim to her; and it was determined that she should be repaired and refitted with the utmost care, with the design of restoring her to the Queen in at least as good a condition as she was at the time when the exigencies of their situation compelled her crew to abandon her. With such completeness and attention to detail has this work been performed that not only has everything found on board been preserved, even to the books in the captain's library, the pictures in his cabin, and some musical instruments belonging to other officers, but new British flags have been manufactured in the Brooklyn Navy-Yard, to take the place of those which had rotted during the long time she was without a living soul on board. From them to stem she has been repainted; has sails and much of her rigging are entirely new; the muskets, swords, telescopes, nautical instruments, &c., which she carried, have been cleaned and put in perfect order. Nothing has been overlooked or neglected that was necessary to her complete and thorough renovation; and everything that had been cleaned or repaired has been excellent taste on the part of those who superintended the operations, has been restored to its original position. In addition to the arrangement of the furniture and the distribution of each particular article, the Queen and the captain of the Resolute on Sunday, in the purest state in which it was when the crew deserted the ship. In fact, the ship is to be restored to a perfect condition, and everything is to be right just as it was left. Capt. Tatnall's quadrant is lying in a drawer on the table. Lieut. Pim's musical box occupies its old place on the top of it "what not." The "logs" of the various officers are in their respective recesses on the book-shelves. The portmanteau, containing the officers' greatcoats is thrown carelessly on a chair. On the wall hangs the picture of a ballet-girl pirouetting—still forever pirouetting on the tips of her toes—and, as if in mockery of domestic comfort, a little kettle that should be singing sings "full of lonelily glee," does nothing of the kind, but sits upon a fireless stove as cold as a stone and as silent.

The Queen's visit to the Resolute yesterday excited much interest among the inhabitants of Portsmouth, Southampton, and Wight, and evidently affected one, at all gratification to the American officers in charge of the ship.

Vice-Admiral Sir Stephen Stewart, K. C. B., Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth, Flag-Captain G. H. Seymour, and Flag-Lieutenant Maclean left Portsmouth at an early hour in the Fire Queen, to make the necessary arrangements for the royal reception.

Her Majesty embarked at Gosport some time up from Spithead to the Resolute off Cowes, and several gun boats and steamers, moved together with Her Majesty's yachts Fairy and Wye, the latter under the command of Captain Hon. James Denman, were stationed in the roads.

The Queen, accompanied by Prince Albert, the Prince of Wales, the Princess Royal, and the Princess Alice, left Osborne at 10½ o'clock, and drove to the shore in an open carriage drawn by four gray ponies. Her Majesty was attended by the Duchess of Athol, Lady Mid Dunmore, and in her suite were Sir Jas. G. Graham, Bt., M.P., Major-General Bouverie, Col. Grevett Bertram being absent at the funeral of his brother, and Rear-Admiral Martin being absent on leave. THE WORK OF DISSOLUTION.

Board of Aldermen.

LAST MEETING OF THE BOARD OF 1856.

The Board of Aldermen assembled yesterday afternoon at 3½ o'clock. They met under melancholy circumstances. It was their last meeting before dissolution. With only two exceptions every Alderman was present to assist at the obsequies.

Of public interest scarcely anything was done, although it was past 5 o'clock before the proceedings terminated. A report of the Committee on Markets, recommending a change for a location for a market on the North River, between 14th and 30th streets, was concurred in after a long debate. The market was sought for on the ground that when Washington Market was erected, the City was small in comparison with its size at the present time, and the majority of the inhabitants then resided in the vicinity of said market; but that the increase of the population during the past twenty years had been such as to require greater and more extensive market accommodations.

It was proposed to amend by striking out "Twenty-third street" and inserting "Fortieth-street," but the proposition was lost.

A resolution from the Board of Councilmen, that all Hook and Ladder Companies in the City should be allowed ten additional men, was concurred in. Another resolution, that all Hose Companies be allowed thirty men, and that all first-class engines twenty men, second class sixty men, and third class fifty men, was also concurred in.

Numerous minor resolutions, of strictly private interest, were taken up, debated, and in most instances adopted. Altogether it was a noisy session. Many times the motion to adjourn was put and lost. Decorum was lost sight of. At length Alderman VOORHIES succeeded in offering the following resolution, preparatory to an adjournment:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Board be tendered to David T. Valentine, Esq., Clerk, Joseph B. Young, Deputy, Reeves E. Schmes and Alfred Cooper, Assistant Clerks, for their faithfulness and uniform courtesy in the discharge of the duties of their respective positions. The marked gentlemanly deportment, affability, and obliging disposition displayed by them on all occasions, entitle them to the confidence and esteem of the members of the Board. This Board also tender their thanks to all the other officers for their diligence and kindness, and gratefully acknowledge the many courtesies received from the Reporters of the Press generally.

This resolution was unanimously adopted.

On motion of Alderman HERRICK, a vote of thanks was tendered to the President of the Board, ISAAC O. BARNES, Esq., who replied in the following terms:

Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen:

It is now one year since we were duly organized, and you then conferred upon me for a second term the honor of presiding over your deliberations, and conducting the proceedings of the Board. I received that renewed mark of your esteem and confidence with a determination to discharge the duties in a manner that I might merit your continued approbation.

To us have been committed great and important trusts. The legislation required for the varied interests of this great commercial emporium have at your hands received a careful consideration, and it becomes me here to say that in all the discussions attendant thereupon, amid the differences of opinion, order and decorum has prevailed, and a desire has been manifested to arrive at such conclusions as would add to the general prosperity of our City, and tend to the public good.

To the Board, to each member thereof, I return my thanks for the complimentary resolution adopted by you this evening. And I shall ever bear in mind the continued respect and courtesy shown to me individually, as well as in my official position.

Gentlemen, we have been spared to separate in health; but the emblems of mourning which surround the Chambers of this Board, continually remind us of the vacant seat of one of our number. Of the late Alderman SAMUEL H. MOORE, I could say much that was good, generous, and noble; but at this time, and on this occasion, I need not say more than that he lived an honest man.

"He has walked the path of life."

That each of you, who are permitted to walk on in that path, may enjoy many years of health, happiness and prosperity, is my most ardent wish.

Gentlemen, I feel the pain of separation from you as members of the Board, and it is alike painful to me to separate myself officially from the much-esteemed Clerk of the Common Council, with whom I have been so intimately connected in my official position for the past two years; of his well-known character as a gentleman, and as an able and efficient officer, I willingly add my testimony to the merited praise it at has been bestowed on him. To him I return my thanks for the willing and courteous manner in which he aided and assisted me, and the members of this Board, in the performance of our several duties. May he long spared in health and happiness.

To his Deputy Clerk, Assistant Clerks, Sergeant at Arms and other officers of this Board, I return my thanks for their attendance on me, as well as the members of the Board, and I have bear testimony to their faithful services—to their constant attention to their several duties.

To our corps of reporters, I return them the thanks of this Board for the faithful and impartial manner in which they have reported the debates and proceedings of the Board, and it is with great pleasure that I can speak of their gentlemanly bearing and deportment, as well to me as other members of the Board.

Gentlemen, the official term of this Board is now at an end, and in taking my final leave of you, it is with great satisfaction that I end my official term as presiding officer over a body where so much of good feeling and kind regards for each other have been shown, and compliments for each of you. I now bid you a final adieu.

At the conclusion of this address, the Board, on motion of Alderman ELY, listened to the reading of the minutes and adjourned sine die. There will be eight new members in the new Board, which will be sworn in on Wednesday, viz.: for the First, Seventh, Ninth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-first Wards. The place that knew Alderman BRIGGS will know him no more. As the Board dissolved last night, we heard some of his Aldermanic friends, who "held over," unkindly addressing him as Ex-Alderman BRIGGS.

Board of Councilmen.

The Board held its final session last evening—the President in the Chair.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and approved.

Three communications were read from His Honor the Mayor—one vetoing the Tax Levy for the ensuing year, another vetoing the resolution giving power to the Street Commissioner to employ a surveyor to make surveys of proposed new grades in Pearl-street, and all the streets that intersect the Bowery extension, and that the expense be taken from the appropriation for street openings.

The communication adds that that Department has recently allowed for the services of surveyors, in the matter of street improvements and repairs, rendered, in my judgment, exceedingly impolitic to intrust it with such an unlimited discretion in that direction.

In a recent case vetoed by me, $75 00 was allowed for the services of a Surveyor, who, according to the admission of the contractor since, was at the work four times, for a period of about one hour each; which is at the ratio of nearly twenty dollars an hour, or two hundred dollars per day.

How much would be taken from the Treasury under this Resolution, at this rate, is fearful to contemplate.

FERNANDO WOOD, Mayor.

The following was read and laid over:

That the resolution directing the Corporation Counsel to stay proceedings in relation to the opening of Albany-street from Greenwich-street to Broadway, approved by the Mayor, Jan. 2, 1856, be and is hereby repealed.

A large number of bills were read a third time and passed—the calendar of the Board having been cleared, with the exception of four bills, which were vetoed. Among those passed were the following:

Concurring with the Board of Aldermen in ordering the repeal of the computation system on the Stages of the Union Ferry Company—all but four of the members voting in the affirmative. In relation to the indebtedness of the Bureau of the Comptroller of the Arrears of Taxes; in favor of purchasing 400 tapis for the use of the Corporation and Departments; in favor of donating $500 to the Seamen's Hospital.

When this business had been finished, Councilman SWAN moved that the Board adjourn sine die, which was carried.

After the adjournment the following preamble and resolution was offered by Councilman SWAN:

Whereas, Isaac O. Barnes, Esq., has discharged the duties of presiding officer of this Board during the year, 1856, with marked ability, thereby merriting the approval of the members thereof; therefore,

Resolved, That the thanks of the Board of Councilmen be, and they are hereby tendered to ISAAC O. BARNES, Esq., for the uniform promptitude, energy, and courtesy which have so eminently characterized the discharge of his official duties as its presiding officer.

Mr. Barnes spoke in terms highly laudatory of the President, for his uniform courtesy and fairness in exercising the arduous duties of his position. He was followed by several members in the same strain.

After the adoption of the resolution, the President, in a few neat sentences, acknowledged the honor paid him.

Resolutions of a like nature were passed for the Clerk, CHAS. MCCLENAHAN, Esq., and all the officers of the Board, and the reporters of the public Press—the latter gentlemen being especially commended for their zeal of emulation in suppressing proceedings which would tend to make some of the fathers appear ridiculous in the view of their constituents.

A gold watch, valued at $275, was presented to the Clerk, (Mr. McClenahan, as aid) by Mr. SWAN, who represented the Board in the presentation. The Ex-Councilmen, then, in a body, adjourned to a neighboring restaurant to partake of a collation.

Mr. Sumner's Lecture on Spain and her Revolutions.

The Mercantile Library Association has started a new and promising course of lectures. The first of this second series was delivered on Tuesday to a good house—Clinton Hall well filled—by GEORGE SUMNER, Esq. It was an admirable lecture, well delivered and warmly received.

The lecturer, in announcing his subject, marked its limits by saying that he proposed neither a history, nor a sketch, nor a treatise on national character, nor a book of travels; but his hope would be, in the hour in which he was privileged to address them, to present something partaking of all these, which should body forth to the general apprehension an idea of Spain—of that ancient, peculiar, interesting, debilitated country.

Conducting his audience into Spain by the Pyrenees, he described the first impression of the traveler, who finds a sombre cloud of melancholy brooding over the land, through which, occasionally, as in Andalusia, break bright electric flashes of inordinate gayety. A burning sun, and the absence of lakes, cause a parching heat, and deprive the heavens of those grand masses of rolling vapor and those ever-varying tints, which make the glory of an Italian or an American sunset.

He reaches a large city like Burgos, and finds in the month of July crowds of strong, able-bodied men walking solemnly on the Alameda, wrapped to their chins in thick brown cloaks, and if he ventures to suggest that this Winter garment must be needlessly warm, is told, in apology for wearing it, that there in Spain it is customary. Again and again will he hear this answer, which is the concluding word of all arguments in favor of improvement.

Some of the Spaniards, conscious of the unchanging state of things, tell a story, at their own expense, of a visit which old Father Adam paid to earth. He wandered through many countries of Europe, but was pained and saddened by all the improvements which he saw. Nothing, he said, looked right, until he came to Spain, when he threw up his aged hands in delight, and exclaimed, "Ah! this now looks natural—there's the very same old plough I used when I last worked here."

Where once was a population of forty millions, the traveler finds only twelve millions—sees an immense extent of fertile country without roads or canals, except those for irrigation, a legacy of the enlightened Moors—goes to the seaports, and finds a few small coasters, with cargoes of trifling value, and a few old hulks, memorials of the naval grandeur of Spain, rotting in their desolate waters—comes to the capital, and finds neither art nor industry, but a host of hungry office-hunters and holders, whose language and appearance at their daily turn-out in the Puerta del Sol, remind him, if an American, of Pennsylvania-avenue during certain months of March.

Being a land, to which Nature has given the most prolific soil—the richest mines, and a magnificent sea-coast, depopulated and degraded, seeing pride, laziness and poverty around him,—the traveler asks if this can really be the land, which in the days of PHILIP II. extended its possessions wider than did ever the Roman Empire,—whose sovereign could boast that the sun never set on his domains, and whose statesmen were the most powerful and sagacious of the world?

Whence comes this saddening change? What causes have produced this fall? Is Spain to remain ever thus low, or is there hope that she may yet arise?

These are the points which the lecturer proposed to examine.

The cause of her downfall he attributed mainly to two things.

1. The loss by the Congress, or Cortes, of their conservative control of the Army Bill.

2. The policy of the Court to make Labor disgraceful.

The Inquisition was an instrument in working out despotic policy, and a financial engine, as it could confiscate the property of condemned subjects, while the Constitution of Aragon forbade this to the King, through any other tribunal.

The course pursued to destroy the Cortes was sketched by Mr. SUMNER, from original documents, copied by him from the Spanish Archives of Simancas. It was full of warning to every Constitutional Government. No sooner had the Executive, by menaces, induced the Cortes to vote the Army bill, before grievances were redressed, than it launched into a policy of foreign war which loaded Spain with crime and with debt—debt led to oppressive taxation—these oppressive taxes led to crime and misery. Titles of nobility were sold to raise money—hosts of nobles sprung up, lazy but proud and poor.

These nobles and the 100,000 monks and nuns were described—their disastrous example—and their opposition to all progress depicted.

Among other entirely new points brought out, Mr. SUMNER stated in regard to the supplies drawn by Spain from Mexico, that it was time the immense sham with which Spain contrived to intimidate all Europe, should be blown to the winds. It was Spanish policy to make Europe believe that she drew inexhaustible treasures from America,—and France and England really believed the swaggering boasts of Spanish Ministers, but it was Mr. SUMNER's fortune to find in the archives of the Indies at Seville, the original lists of the gold and silver received from the New World,—which show, that the product of the conquest of Mexico and all, in fact, that Spain received from America during the 30 years when her boasts were loudest, would, if sent to the Philadelphia Mint, coin into only half a million dollars,—not as much as we receive every week from California.

We can only hastily follow the lecturer in his exposition of the development of parties in Spain,—of the destruction of the Convents,—the reform of the Courts,—the founding normal schools,—the character of the Queen,—the bloody career of NARVAEZ,—the revolutions which placed him in power,—those of two years since,—and the last move, attributed to the influence of LOUIS NAPOLEON, jealous of seeing more liberty in Spain than he permits at home,—and his predictions of further movements which will touch the throne itself.

In this part Mr. SUMNER was able to draw upon his own personal recollections, and to enliven his lecture by characteristic anecdotes.

The hope of Spain for the future he placed:

1. In her municipal organization.

2. In her bright-witted peasantry, just enjoying schools for their children.

3. In her industrial classes—who no longer admit labor to be degrading.

4. In her women—to whose patriotism and noble qualities he paid a glowing tribute.

The lecture concluded by saying:

Could the spirit of Spain, reviewing its own career, speak to other nations, it would cry out with a voice of warning, beware of everything which limits the freedom of thought or the freedom of speech—maintain a free press—preserve its purity and its impartiality—fear less its occasional licentiousness than the eternal license for wrong which follows its silence.

Watch every invasion of your Legislative Assemblies and their rights, whether by the stealthy march of corruption, or by open violence.

Keep ever in your hands the purse-strings which ambitious rulers, for their own wicked ends, will centuries a thousand devices to draw from you.

Beware of everything which tends to degrade or depreciate LABOR and knowledge, the companions of liberty.

And, as you would leave to your children the blessings of peace and security for the future, beware of all those glittering gleams of foreign conquests, which, while bringing to you a nerveless empire, motionless and wide, create for you a Rest of chattered libertines, lazy swaggerers, too proud to work, if not too too ignorant, and therefore the fit tools for schemes which may secure their advancement, even at the price of those great principles of justice and right, by which alone individuals can be happy, nations glorious, liberty durable.

Young Men's Christian Association.

At the Christian Association on Tuesday night, after the regular exercises were over, they had quite a joyful time—begotten by the offer on the part of Mr. S. LEAKE, of certain resolutions, which were thought "to have a bearing." The whereas and resolution were as follows:

Whereas, Every organization of Christian men, though outside the Church and separate and distinct from it, associated, in the name of Christ, for the furtherance of His cause on earth, is in a measure the the Church itself, put in trust with the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and should seek in all possible ways to bear witness to the truth of that Gospel, to promote the progress of its great and fundamental principles, and to resist all opposition, particularly that which is organized and formidable to the progress of those principles throughout the land and the world; and

Whereas, The custom of holding human beings in involuntary servitude—converting them thereby into chattels, and stamping them with marks, inflicting in their guilt and sale the sufferings of humanity, requiring as a necessary condition of their subjection a denial to them of the ordinary facilities of education, and in many instances of the Word of God—in short, the whole practice of human Slavery, in all its details and with all its consequences, wherever it may exist, and particularly where it exists as an organized institution recognized and sheltered by the law of the land, is a sin in the sight of God, a violation of the principles of the Gospel, and a hindrance to the progress of Christianity; and

Whereas, It is the Providence of God, one of the chief ones which occupy the attention of this nation in the present age, has proven out of this subject, and while the extremes of the times demand a free and unmistakable utterance of opinion in reference to it; and while silence itself is interpreted as an opinion, therefore,

Resolved, That this Association, in common with other Christian bodies, hereby solemnly bear its testimony for Christ's sake, against the institution of human Slavery, wherever it may exist on the face of the earth, as a violation of the law of God; and against it, particularly as it exists in this enlightened and Christian country, as putting to shame the principles of Christianity.

It was not perfectly plain sailing to get these read, the Chair asserting that there was a rule excluding the subject of Slavery from among the topics of discussion. But the majority were not afraid. After the reading a motion was made to lay on the table, and the Ayes and Noes called, which resulted, Ayes, 49 Noes, 37—so it was not carried. It was then laid over to the next monthly meeting.

Whether the Reprint is or is not an immoral paper was not discussed for want of time. The next meeting promises to be a pleasantly warm one.

Moral Insanity Again.

Many persons suppose that because no medical testimony on the trial of HUNTINGDON was offered against that of Messrs. PARKER and GILMAN, there is a wide conflict between science and law on the subject of insanity. The District-Attorney found that time was not allowed for testimony, in reply, in order to finish the case before Judge CAMPBELL's term of office expired. Half the medical profession of the City were at his disposal, and Dr. RANNEY (of the Blackwell's Island Lunatic Asylum, who has had 600 yearly patients for many years, was anxious to place science on the platform with law. But Messrs. HALE and NOYES seem to have determined to put the common sense of the Jury against the theories of the two Doctors, and Mr. NOYES was deputed by the District-Attorney, as familiar in certain important civil cases with the law of insanity in all its branches, to overthrow the physicians who so boldly followed the lead of the lawyers. Common sense in the jury-box, we rejoice to say, triumphed for once in this City. By the way, a protest is going the rounds of the medical profession, which has already been very largely signed, against the reception of the testimony of Drs. PARKER and GILMAN being taken as the sentiment or doctrine of the medical faculty generally.

Applying to the State for a Fire Engine.

The citizens of Sing Sing will present a petition to the next Legislature, praying for an appropriation to enable them to purchase a first-class efficient fire engine, which may be used as well to extinguish any fires that may occur in the prison shops, as in the village. The petition sets forth that much property has been saved to the State from fire by the exertions of the residents of Sing Sing, and that one fire engine and apparatus has been nearly worn out in that service. The Fire Department of Sing Sing has lately been strengthened by the addition of a new engine and hose cart; and a few days ago the members had a very creditable parade and dinner.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The State Superintendency of Public Instruction seems likely to receive a due share of consideration during the coming Winter. Mr. RICE, the present incumbent, is named for reelection, and Messrs. S. S. RANDALL and VAN DYKE, of Albany, are named as his competitors. Only the best man should be thought of for this most important post.

☞ Who will be the President of the Board of Education for the coming year? This question disturbs the Board of Education considerably. There are four men named as likely—some of them more likely men, than likely to be elected. The four are: ANDREW H. GREEN, Esq., the present incumbent; WM. H. NEWSON, late President; EBENEZER C. BENEDICT, President from 1850 to 1854; and NELSON J. WATERBURY, Assistant City Postmaster.

☞ The number of vessels in this port, yesterday, was 618, including 36 steamers, 103 ships, 109 barks, 97 brigs, and 268 schooners.

Fires.

IN ORCHARD-STREET.

A fire broke out at 10½ o'clock Tuesday night, in the paint shop of GEORGE R. LEAK, No. 68½ Orchard-street. It was caused by carelessness, in leaving a camphene lamp burning against a wall. It was put out, with a loss of about $175. The second story, occupied by WILLIAM WHITMORE, as a carpenter's shop, was slightly damaged.

IN NINTH-AVENUE.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the same night a fire occurred in the shoe factory of A. S. CORNELL, No. 261 Ninth-avenue. It was caused by a defective stove-pipe. Damage about $150; no insurance.

IN MANHATTAN-STREET—CASE OF ARSON.

A fire was discovered about 4 o'clock yesterday morning in an unoccupied frame building in Manhattan-street, near Tenth-avenue, Harlem. The police managed to extinguish it with a few pails of water. On examination it was found that spirits of turpentine had been thrown upon the weather boards of the building and then ignited. The bottle which had contained the spirits was found near. No clue to the incendiary could be learned. The building is owned by Mr. SWINNERTON, of No. 170 Broome-street.

Killed by a Fall.

ELLEN CULL, aged 60 years, and a native of Ireland, was killed Tuesday, by falling into the area of the new building in the Bowery Extension, one door from Roosevelt-street. The body was removed to the Fourth Ward Station-house, where an inquest upon it was held by Coroner CORNEY. The following verdict was rendered:

"That deceased came to her death by injuries in the head, causing, in our opinion, a concussion of the brain, received by falling into the area of the house one door from the corner of Roosevelt-street in the Bowery; and we further find that the proprietors of said building are highly censurable in leaving that part of the area where falling is to be placed uncovered by boards, which should have been done, so as to prevent the persons by from falling in, and, as in this case, causing the death of Mrs. ELLEN CULL."

Stealing Silk.

JOHN DIBERT, a lad of 13 years, was taken in custody yesterday, while attempting to make way with two pieces of silk from the store of Messrs. BRIGGS, CHENEY & LAY, at No. 49 Barclay-street. He had reached the lower entry with the property on his shoulder, when a porter employed in the building, suspecting something wrong, interrogated him. Dibert then dropped the goods and ran, but he was soon overtaken by an officer, who took him before Justice CONNOLLY. The prisoner acknowledged "taking" the pieces of silk. He said he was born in New-Jersey, resided in Bergen Point, and was by occupation a seller of apples and potatoes. He was committed to answer in default of $1,000 bail.

Tried to Kill Herself.

An Irishwoman, named ELIZABETH MCDERMOTT, aged 35 years, was found wandering and sick in the street on Wednesday night. A Seventh Ward Policeman took her to the Station-House, where she confessed that she was suffering from a dose of laudanum for the purpose of suicide. A physician who was immediately called, restored her, and she was sent to her residence, No. 365 Madison-street. She would not assign any reason for her attempt at self-destruction.

Pacific Emigration.

An adjourned meeting of the Society for promoting emigration to California was held Tuesday evening at the Metropolitan Hotel. It was resolved that the organization should in future be known as "The New-York Committee of Pacific Emigration." Thirty names were added to the list for raising the necessary funds, and D. L. ROSS, W. T. COLLMAN, JAMES W. BINGHAM, S. B. BOND and R. C. KEMBLE were appointed Directors, with power to select permanent officers for the committee.

☞ The young ladies of Grammar School No. 2 are holding a fair in the schoolhouse in Laurens-street, which opened some days since, for the purpose of raising money to pay the balance due on a piano-forte, purchased for the use of the school. It closes on the 3d of January with a musical and literary festival in the evening.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.

There have been a number of important and interesting cases argued and decided in this Court during the past week. The decision of the Rahway bank-note case, and the Central-Bank case, decided by Judge HARRIS, are too well known to require further notice. The case of JAMES M. HARPER, in relation to certain shares of stock of the State Trust Company, commanded attention, as did also the case of The United States Trust Company vs. The Executors of the Suffolk Bank. In Equity the matter of widening Beekman-street was heard, and in the same equity "Waite's case," involving some $200,000 or $300,000 was decided. In May a motion was made, before Judge STRONG, to change the place of trial of Lewis Baker, charged with the murder of William Poole, on the ground that it was impossible to obtain a fair jury in this City.

The case of HAMILTON vs. THE ADMIRALTY INSURANCE Company was one of importance. The plaintiff was the owner of two hundred shares of the Company. Patricio Rivas, the provisional President of Nicaragua, on the 16th of February, 1856, issued a decree declaring that this Company be henceforth dissolved. Mr. Hamilton consequently requisitioned the Company for the amount of his shares, and in the meantime supplied for an injunction against it, and the appointment of a receiver. The main question was, whether Rivas had obtained such a stable power in Nicaragua as to authorize our Country to acknowledge his Government, and our Courts the act. Mr. Justice CLERKE in an able opinion decided that it was not so, and therefore denied the motion. Whatever be our great and the People's Will, upon both in relation to wills, and involving a large amount of property, occupied the attention of the Court. The "Brick Church case," as it is usually called, also excited general interest, involving as it did, the title to a valuable lot of land, which is now to be covered by a Post-Office, which we hope will be as honest to the City. The case of Hopper vs. The New-York Balance Dock Company was one peculiar to compel the reversal of the jury verdict, on the ground that they are a nuisance, is of importance and interest to the commercial community. Unfortunately this question has not yet been decided. We should not neglect to mention the Northern Railway of France vs. Louis Greiet, Charles Carpentier, and others, which excited some interest, as well as the case of McSpedon vs. The County Treasurer, which involved the validity of the City Charter of 1853,—which charter, however, was decided to be still valid and in force.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM—Dec. 31.

Before Hon. Justice Davies.

LEWIS BAKER ADMITTED TO BAIL.

The People, &c., vs. Lewis Baker, Patrick McLaughlin and James Turner.—Yesterday James T. Brady, Esq., made a motion, upon a writ of habeas corpus, to admit the above defendants to bail. His Honor made the following order:

The prisoner Lewis Baker being brought before me, it is returned that he is held in custody by virtue of commitment upon an indictment charging him and Patrick McLaughlin and James Turner and John Hyler and Cornelius Linn jointly, with homicide.

The District-Attorney for the people, on an application next made to bail the said prisoners, consents to the same, (and consents that the joint defendants be considered as personally present with the said Lewis Baker,) and by agreement I fix the said bail to be given in the sum of five thousand dollars each, in good and sufficient sureties, and thereupon each of the said defendants, Lewis Baker, McLaughlin and Turner, be discharged from custody.

Mr. James McGee, of No. 347 Seventh-avenue, became Baker's bail, and he was discharged. The rest of the defendants have not yet been bailed.

Before Hon. Justice Clerke.

DECISIONS.

The People, ex rel. Jas. Lang, vs. Eiting.—Referred to M. Leyman, Esq., to take proof, and report his conclusion of fact from the evidence. Notice of hearing before referee to be four days. This is the case in relation to a stand in Washington Market, reported in the TIMES some days since.

Richardson vs. Edwards.—Motion granted, without costs.

SUPERIOR COURT.

In the Superior Court there seems to have been less of a public interest this term than in former years. Griffin vs. Judson, a case which exhibited to the uninitiated some of the profits of hotel-keeping, might, perhaps, be allowed a place in our list of important cases. The Cox Divorce suit, which was, of course, celebrated, not merely because of its being a divorce suit, but also from the high position in society occupied by Rev. Dr. Cox, (who brought the suit, but who did not gain it.) There were few, probably, who read the evidence, who did not agree with the Court, but who long for the defendant. Lamb vs. Lamb and Lodge, was an action of considerable interest to our Wall-street friends, in relation to various modes of stock-jobbing. Pennington vs. The Sixth-avenue Railroad, is, perhaps, the most generally interesting case tried in this Court since the "Cox Divorce Suit." Mr. Pennington is a respectable colored minister, intelligent and well bred. One day he got into one of the Sixth-avenue cars, and was told that colored persons could not ride there, and was ordered to get on to the front platform, or off entirely. This he refused to do, whereupon he was ejected by the driver. He sued the Company for damages, and a trial was had. The Company proved that their rules prohibited colored persons from riding in the cars, and, therefore, the conductor was justified in putting Mr. Pennington off. Mr. Pennington claimed that the Company had no right to make such a rule; they were bound to transport the public, and that he, being a citizen, and a tax-payer, was a part of the public. The Judge (Judge BRADLEY) charged the Jury to the effect that if they thought that the admitting of colored persons into the cars would seriously damage the business of the Company they must find a verdict for them. Under this instruction, they brought in a verdict for the defendants, thereby prohibiting colored persons from riding in any of our public conveyances. The case will, however, be taken to a higher Court.

These constitute, we believe, all the cases of importance tried in this Court during the past year.

Last, but not least, is the admitting of Baker and his associates to bail, which was allowed yesterday, and is noticed in another column.

The Supreme Court has accomplished considerable business this year, although the trouble in the earlier months as to what is called the "Disputed Judgeship," at first seemed inclined to disarrange matters and to seriously impede the transaction of its official duties.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Judge Daly.

Abraham Cole vs. William Wilson.—Order directing a commission to issue.

Frederick Dillon vs. William H. Townsend.—Motion for an order directing plaintiff to file security for costs granted.

Arthur Rock, &c., vs. John O'Connor.—Motion to dismiss lien granted.

Anthony McReynolds vs. James Gallagher.—Motion to dismiss lien granted.

The Negro Troubles.

The New-Orleans Delta has the following, in relation to the late insurrection:

We have now received the official report of the detail on the recent outbreak, from Colonel Shaler, the officer in charge of the troops, in the parishes of St. Charles and St. John the Baptist. The following is a condensed statement of the facts, as the report is more voluminous than the time at our disposal will allow us to peruse at this moment. On Tuesday, the 23d ult., the subject and purpose of the first conflagration of cane documents not likely to be productive of good in a community where such inflammable elements. The combination with the black race, bond and free. But the symptoms of agitation are so numerous, widespread, and apparently concurrent, that it becomes a duty to recognize the state of facts, fully and reservedly, with a view to the adoption of the proper steps to be taken for the suppression of evil, and the maintenance of the existing relations between the two races in the South against interior disturbance and aggression from without.

It is not clear that positive insurrection has been attempted; however, although the gravity of the matter alone the Constituted Authorities in Louisiana, and the more recent affairs in Mississippi, suggest that it behoves the South to be on the alert; that those various occurrences have produced a state of mind among the negroes, of a character to make them dangerous; that there is a critical change in their condition, in consequence of the agitation by a powerful party in the United States, and, consequently, the duty of the south is ready to give them the help of arms and troops when they shall endeavor to rise on their owners. Taken these three facts together, and considering them as concerted action, we have no other reason to believe than that in places quite remote from each other, all the disclosures obtained were found upon the same day everywhere, as that upon which an unprofitable effort to be made against the whites. The day is the 24th of December, or more generally, about the Christmas holidays; and the same notion prevails in Kentucky, Arkansas and Tennessee, as well as in Mississippi, Louisiana and TEXAS.

We do not infer from this that there is a combination in fact reaching so widely, or that there has been a concert among the blacks. It is more likely the general idea among the wicked white villains who circulate anything their causes to be most disorganizing, that the season of leisure and abandon, when pleasure takes the place of business, and authority may be supposed to be indolent and careless, would be the best opportunity for doing most mischief.

We do not suppose the most sanguine of these tempters look to any other result, from the most extended emeute, than alarm and distress to the white population, a few days tumultuous of riot, robbery and murder, with a view to the enforcing hereafter of obnoxious theories by a heavy pressure from without upon the intimidated South. They cannot expect any present results to the blacks other than immediate subjugation, severe punishment, bloody and perhaps vindictive retribution, and a condition thereafter harder and more stringent than was ever found necessary before.

The consequences will fall with inevitable rigor on all alike. They cannot in the nature of things be confined to the small number of the actually turbulent; for the number actually engaged in any such scenes will be but a small one among the mass of that population. The protective and precautionary policy must reach all; and this is a result to which the Southern people, maligned though they are, have been extremely unwilling to be coerced, but by the most positive necessity. The latitude of privilege which they have heretofore given to free blacks and slaves, and the intimacies with which they have administered, and of late even neglected to enforce, their own restrictive laws, exhibit the feeling of kindness and indulgence which has hitherto prevailed among them. If a change is now to be effected, and stringent called for, back to the strictest rigor of police law, abridging the indulgence heretofore allowed, and imposing sterner and unrelaxing discipline, it is in the righteous exercise of the duty to guard life, safety and honor for the whites, and in mercy to the victims, whom an incendiary philanthropy, cruel as false, would delude to their destruction. To save these poor creatures from the drift and sure extermination which would follow, if the counsels of the seducers prevail upon them, it has become highly expedient for the slave States to revise their codes, and for all inferior authorities to take sufficient measures for carrying into effect all the ordinances and laws which forecast has provided, and a full view of the local as well as the general aspect of the case suggests, for the maintenance of order and subordination among the blacks, and the keeping of them from the contaminating influences which are seen, in their effects at least, to be at work for mischief.

That there are villains about, who have been successful in disquieting some portion of the slave population, and in producing a great state of excitement in the interior, is confirmed by daily reports that we are not at liberty to disregard. Those from Tennessee and Mississippi assume a consistency which justifies the adoption of immediate precautionary measures to prevent the ignorant and misled from provoking a strife which, detrimental to all, must, mutually fatally and swiftly on themselves; and henceforth, the law-making and the executive powers must take the charge of revising and amending the whole code of discipline and administration.

We have in New-Orleans a large amount of the class of population most likely to be influenced by these evil counsels, and most directly accessible from abroad. They form, too, a facile medium of communication with the slaves. Their opportunities for learning and circulating disorderly ideas are very great at all times; be great, as to make it important that vigilance should be exercised in regard to them always; and that, at least, all the laws which are already provided, for regulating their conduct and intercourse with each other, and with the slave population, should be rigidly enforced, and new regulations should be provided where these are deficient. We are not without intimations that there is talk among this class, and that there have been other symptoms, which make it highly expedient to take precautions here, also, against the spread of this temper of disorder, and to discover, avert, and punish with summary and inflexible justice, the authors and ringleaders of any contemplated violence, and the teachers and seducers who are spreading the poison abroad.

The times are at least urgent for the exercise of the most watchful vigilance over the conduct of slaves and free colored persons. The regulations which were passed to prevent the promiscuous intercourse of these classes with each other, and those which forbid slaves being apart from the domicile of their masters, and which prohibit the gatherings of colored persons except with the attendance of whites, and the regulations for the giving of passes, which have been so much abused, should all be rigidly enforced. The possible development of the future may perhaps show that the grounds for believing this particularly necessary at this time are overrated; but it is better to err from excess of precaution, than to mistake by neglecting the admonitions of prudence.

Another Affair of Honor!

ALEX. H. STEPHENS, M. C. from Georgia, about the middle of November last called on Mr. B. H. HILL, for an explanation of something he said de rebus nihil, in a speech made by him some time since at Augusta, to which Mr. HILL returned an answer which did not prove entirely satisfactory, whereupon the following correspondence ensued between the parties:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Saturday, Nov. 29, 1856.

SIR: Your letter bearing date the 24th instant, (sealed or postmarked the 25th,) did not reach Crawfordville, where it was directed, until after I left for this place, which I regret. It had just come to hand here, where it has been forwarded, and is for from being such as I had reason to expect. So far from this, it has in it much, both in tone and matter, personally offensive in itself. Your answer, therefore, to my last two inquiries, taken in connection with the whole of your response to my letter of the 17th ult., by no means constitute such an explanation of the offensive character of the report, which has been communicated to me, of your remarks at Thomson and Augusta, as I can receive with a due regard to my honor as a gentleman and my integrity as a man.

I do not deem it proper on this occasion to join issue with you in any statement of facts, in your account of what either you or I said at Lexington. You hold yourself responsible, I suppose, for your own version of both: and for the version as given by yourself, as well as its tone and manner, I ask of you that satisfaction which is usual between gentlemen in such cases.

NEW-YEAR'S DAY.

Yesterday being New-Year Day, no Morning Edition of the DAILY TIMES will be issued to subscribers. Evening Editions will be published, as usual, containing all the news up to the latest moment.

New-Year's Day.

One steady-going and pious subscriber thought it a good plan to begin the new year with a holiday—to renew the tenor of life with a cheery spirit and a smiling countenance—to let the care of one day of jollity at least, when toil should be abandoned and all business given up to the interchange of neighborly visits and friendly greetings. So New-Year's Day was made a holiday, and the new year was merrily and good-naturedly inaugurated. The first day over, and work was resumed again; the world wagged on as usual, and no one was the worse for a day devoted to overflowing charity and jovial practices.

New-Year's Day in New-York is the great holiday of the year; it is the only one in which the entire population heartily unite, and so far from its falling into disuetude, it is every year kept up with increased spirit and jollity. The first day of 1857 promises to equal in the general hilarity of its observance, any of its predecessors within our memory. The good old fashion of calling upon everybody will know no falling off, and the streets will be all alive with carriages and pedestrians, while all the places of business will be closed, and every lady, if Col. BENTON will pardon the mention of the word, will make it a religious duty to remain at home and look as charming as she can.

There are some ladies who are guilty of the bad taste of closing up their windows and lighting the gas, under the mistaken notion that it gives increased brilliancy to their apartments. But it is a wretched mistake. There is no light so brilliant as daylight, nor so favorable to a fine display of parlor ornaments or personal attractions. Let there be no gas-lights on New-Year's day. Coming out of the clear light of day into an apartment artificially illuminated, destroys the most ghostly effect conceivable.

The practice of darkening their parlors is followed with almost all ladies on New-Year's Day, even when the gas is not lighted; and the consequence is, that during the brief stay a visitor makes, he does not become so used to the gloom as to be able to distinguish objects distinctly, and he goes off with rather a vague impression as to whom and what he has seen.

There is nothing so cheerful and pleasant as the broad daylight; and, of all days in the year, New-Year's Day is the one when there should be no obstructions to the light of Heaven in our houses.

The only change that has taken place in the manner of celebrating New-Year's Day is, that there is less drinking of strong potations and wines, and consequently more genuine cheerfulness and enjoyment, and less of the noisy and vulgarous spirit with which it used to be kept up.

News from Europe.

By the Fulton, which arrived at this port yesterday from Southampton, we have four days' later advices from Europe. The news is interesting. Our readers will be glad to hear of the safety of the U. S. mail steamer Hermann, about which there has been much anxiety. She encountered a terrible gale when about nine hundred miles from Southampton, and one of her engines was so severely damaged that she was compelled to put back to port. The vessel herself was uninjured. Her mails and passengers were brought to New-York by the Fulton.

The arrival at Portsmouth of the Arctic ship Resolute, under command of American officers, has created quite an excitement among our English friends. The liberality of our Government in presenting the ship to the British nation, is warmly acknowledged and appreciated. All courtesy has been extended to Lieutenant DESBARATS and his companions. On the 16th inst. the Queen visited the Resolute, which was moored to Cowes for the purpose.

The act was an unusual one, and will be regarded as a kindly recognition of the compliments paid her by the restoration of the ship. Her Majesty was received on board by Lieut. HARTSTENE and his officers, and the scene that ensued was quite an interesting one. An account is given elsewhere.

The last Message of President PIERCE had been received in England, and is published in extenso by all the leading journals. It seems to have met with a more favorable reception there than it did from our own people.

Our political advices by this arrival are of some moment. The quarrel between the Russian Government and the Swiss Republic has assumed a most serious aspect. An amicable arrangement, unless brought about by powerful intervention, is spoken of as beyond hope. Prussia is said to have communicated a note to the Government of Louis NAPOLEON, intimating that, as diplomatic negotiations have failed, it has become necessary to resort to coercive measures. The Federal Council refused, though France and the whole of Europe, England excepted, are against them, and the Royalist prisoners at Neufchatel will be tried and adjudged, guilty or not guilty, according to law. It is this trial which the King of Prussia is determined, if possible, to prevent, as he is apprehensive that unpalatable facts will be disclosed in the evidence.

Particulars have reached us of the recent attempt to assassinate the King of Naples. The king, in the emergency, is said to have behaved with much coolness and courage. The assassin was a man of considerable intelligence—in possession of a sound mind, but determined to carry his purpose into execution. He was implicated in no conspiracy, but was moved (as he confessed) by revenge for equal treatment towards members of his family. He resisted, found guilty and hung within a week after he attempted the crime. The people executed to the justice of the punishment inflicted, but seem to have evinced no enthusiasm at their King's escape from assassination.

We receive by this mail the formal declaration of war proclaimed at Bombay against Persia by the East India Company. Elsewhere we print the document, but it does not very clearly explain the causes of the war. It has been recognized by the Persian Government. The last division of the British expeditionary force for the invasion of the South of Persia had sailed from Bombay, and the Island of Karak, the first point of attack, had been captured and occupied. Russian movements on the Persian frontier continue threatening, and justify the report that, at the first intimation from the Shah, fifty thousand Russian troops will be ready to render assistance.

The Congress of Paris was to meet between the 20th and 25th of December. It is supposed that the questions to be discussed will have been arranged beforehand so that the Conferences will last as short a time as possible.

We find no mention made in the English papers of the reported rescue of the captain of the Igomanie and fifteen of the crew. The rumor has been contradicted, and never had any foundation in truth.

As we go to press, a dispatch from Halifax announces the arrival of the Niagara at that port, with three days' later news.

Recruits for Walker.

The omission of the United States District-Attorney to stop the military emigration to Nicaragua by the Tennessee and James Adger is to be regretted for other reasons than strictly legal ones. It is needless to say that these shipments of recruits are quite as criminal as the worst essays of the Cuban filibusters, or those paltry enlistments about which we were ready to make war with England; and that the Government official was as fully apprised of the fact as he was of the law, there can be no manner of doubt, for the object and character of the emigration were notorious, and the sailing of the former steamer announced for weeks before with the understanding that its freight should be aid and comfort to WALKER. We cannot avoid the suspicion that had the vessel been up for Africa and a cargo of slaves, more active zeal would have been manifested in its detention and seizure; possibly because in that case a forfeiture would have better rewarded the ardor of the agents.

That this business of transmitting troops to WALKER is, in any particular, more humane than the transmission of negroes from Guinea, may be safely questioned. The hazards of life, and the service to which the victims are consigned, are all to the advantage of the negro. The Tennessee came hither the other day, a slight vessel, unfit for sea service, with a list of dead, extending to thirty-four names, in a voyage of ten days, and bearing one-third more passengers than it furnished accommodations for. The passengers had but one story to tell of miserable privation, ill-treatment, violence, all the way from San Francisco to New-York. All of those who left the former city, unprovided with a through ticket, were seized by the minions of WALKER and impressed, notwithstanding all the efforts of their fellow-passengers to save them; the Transit Company necessarily abetting the action of the usurpatory government. The same compulsion undoubtedly induces the servants of the Company to deny the difficulties of the route, to suppress complaint, and gives the news they bear the color most favorable to a cause really expiring. Instances that came under our notice, and which we duly reported at the time, proved to what dire sufferings the soldiers of WALKER were reduced; witnessed their starvation and illness; and the vast per centage of the whole which every day in that uncongenial climate swept to the grave. No Life Insurance Company will accept a risk on a Nicaragua emigrant. And yet are hundreds of young, misinformed men, seduced from their homes, carried by this terrible middle passage to the almost certain death awaiting them on the Isthmus, and left there in the clutches of the petty tyrant, from whose fatal grasp there is no escape, it seems, save by death in battle, or in bed by that fell fever under which four-fifths of the many thousands sent thither have already sunk. Hemmed in by implacable enemies, who cannot, with safety, rest until the intruder is expelled or exterminated—without food or supplies, save what are brought from a distant country—and without men to fill the gaps war, pestilence and famine incessantly open in his ranks—WALKER is, nevertheless, represented to these ignorant recruits as in the midst of a series of triumphs, amply supplied, abounding in pecuniary resources, and able to make good the engagements for pay, rations, and bounty land, which are held out as lures to the unhappy dupes.

Beyond, therefore, any legal obligation, it is a duty of charity, benevolence, patriotism, to stop this efflux of misguided young men. It is an act of charity to those now in WALKER'S army, who, we are assured, can only hope release from their murderous service in the utter prostration of their leader's hopes; it is an act of charity to WALKER himself to hasten that catastrophe, which, if protracted, may prove his utter destruction. Whether he is entitled to such consideration, is a question admitting of two sides.

THE MURDERS IN THE MASSACHUSETTS STATE PRISON.—There is a sorry time in Boston. That usually staid and quiet corner of the earth has its troubles and its crimes, like other places, less favored by the prestige of a sainted ancestry. No event since the Parkman murder has created such an excitement as the two State Prison murders which have occurred within the past fortnight. Since the middle of December, two Deputy Wardens of that institution have been murdered in cold blood, while in the performance of their duties, by prisoners under confinement for very brief periods. The circumstances attending these murders need not be recapitulated. In both instances they were of a peculiarly distressing nature. In both, the same kind of implement was employed; in both, the victims were men noted for their quiet manner and consideration towards the prisoners placed in their care; and in neither case was any provocation for the assault known to have been given. The fact of the second murder following so close upon the first, and both occurring within the Prison precincts, drawn marked attention to the management of the institution, and suggests the existence of radical defects in discipline and treatment. Now that the public curiosity is aroused, we may await further developments of the Prison secrets, with the assurance of instructive hints.

The Paris Congress—Mr. Marcy and Lord Brougham.

Speculation is rife among the quid-nuncs and diplomatists at Paris, as to the results to be expected from the Assembly of the Imperial and Royal Congress now in session at Paris.

The questions of Bolgrad and the Isle of Serpents are certainly the objects of the meeting, for they are, beyond all doubt, not the only, nor the foremost topics to be discussed and settled. It is broadly hinted in some of the Paris Journals that the question of the Austrian occupation of the principalities of Moldavia and Wallachia must and will be disposed of at this Congress. The opinion is expressed that Austria must be made to evacuate those provinces which she now occupies with her troops, and over which she exercises absolute dominion.

This question is certainly much more important than that of Bolgrad or of the Isle of Serpents, and the honor and dignity of both France and England are more seriously affected by it.

Should Austria be permitted to continue master of the Principalities, France and England will literally exemplify and realize the well-known fable, which, having hitherto been but a fable, will henceforth cease to be fabulous. The story, as it runs, tells of two travelers who were disputing about their right to the possession of an oyster. On submitting their case to a third party who happened to encounter them, and calling upon him to decide the dispute, the umpire took the oyster in his hands, and swallowing at a gulp the eatable portion, himself, gravely handed over a shell to each of the disputants as his portion. In the political question under consideration, the Principalities are the rich fat oyster. It was on their account that the war was entered into, and now, as final decision of the dispute, Austria has seized upon them and holds them in her possession. France and England have done all the hard and dangerous work of warfare, they have expended millions of money and thousands of brave men's lives while Austria stood aloof all the time, maintaining a cautious and insidious neutrality. Without any labor or expense on her part, she has possessed herself of the prize,—she has swallowed the oyster.

France and England will deservedly be the laughing stock of nations in all future history if they patiently submit to this ignominious treatment, this almost ludicrous termination to the high and lofty drama they have so lately been performing before the world at Sebastopol and elsewhere.

There is another reason which, if true, renders the Austrian occupation still more disgraceful to the two Powers above mentioned, putting them into the condition of simple dupes who have been easily imposed upon by superior cunning. Russia, as is well known, gave it out, when first the occupation was made, that it was made by Austria on her behalf and in her interests. This was solemnly and officially declared to the world by Russia, and never was contradicted by Austria. For this reason we are justified in believing that it is so. But assuming such a condition of things to be the fact, in that case, Russia is still the occupant of the Principalities, and Austria is only her agent. What a position for France and England! Can anything more humiliating be conceived? These two Powers went into the war which has cost them so much, expressly for the purpose of driving out Russia from those Principalities, and now, after so much bloodshed and expense, we see them still in the occupation of Russia by her vassal and agent! National shame and disgrace could hardly be carried to a higher pitch than this. Under this view of the case, the war which has just ended has been a war without purpose, object or result. It has been the most wanton, cruel and unrighteous waste of blood ever recorded in the history of nations. Instead of accomplishing the avowed object of the war—that of driving Russia from the Turkish soil—the very reverse is done, and Russia is now secured in the possession of the Principalities, to be handed over to her, by her pliant agent, at some convenient season. France and England may well desire the meeting of a new Congress. But they may be able, if not again outwitted by Calmase canning, to rectify their error, to redeem their honor, to wash out this stain from their escutcheon, and, if possible, to effect by diplomacy what they have signally failed to accomplish by the war they have been so vainly engaged in. If such a status is to remain in the eyes of the world as all the result of the gigantic armaments, the vast expenditures, the terrific efforts of these two powers, it will henceforth be a contradiction in terms to call them "the great powers."

It is highly probable that, in this view of the case, the bone of contention, the grand object to be discussed and settled at this Congress of European powers, will be the continued occupation of Moldavia and Wallachia in the name and by the forces of Austria. Bolgrad and the Isle of Serpents are doubtless secondary and subordinate matters.

By our last accounts, received by the Fulton, which left on the 17th, we learn that the Congress was to meet on or about the 21st ultimo. It is, therefore, very probably, in session at the time we are writing.

There may be other questions which the Congress perhaps will take up, such as the humanitarian question as connected with maritime law. Mr. MARCY will come in for his share of notice on this subject, which will not, we are inclined to think, be very gratifying to his vanity, if the Congress should take the same view of his proposition in relation to privateering which Lord BROUGHAM has recently done, in a reprint of one of his writings. That noble and celebrated jurist treats the proposition made by Secretary MARCY, in response to the declaration of the Congress of April 16, as an unworthy and illogical evasion. The Paris Congress proposed, in a Circular addressed to the Cabinet at Washington, as well as to other Governments, the abolition of privateering in all future maritime warfare. The Government of the United States was invited, if it so pleased, to give its assent to this proposition, and to agree that such should henceforth be received as the maritime law of nations. Mr. MARCY, in reply to the circular addressed to the Cabinet of Washington, refused, indirectly, to accede to the proposed law, and, instead thereof, proposed a much wider extension of the humane principle on which it was based. He proposed to make all neutral vessels and neutral merchandise free on the great ocean, and to abolish the practice of interfering on the ocean with any other vessels than such as belonged to the belligerent parties, and were equipped for purposes of hostility. Lord BROUGHAM demolishes all the glory which Mr. MARCY'S friends have heaped upon him for the alleged superior humanity of this proposition, by a single and effective metaphor. His Lordship says that, when Mr. MARCY refuses to assent to the abolition of privateering, except on the condition that the principle be extended further, and that all hostility by sea shall cease, in times of war, against all vessels of all nations, excepting only between the men-of-war of the respective belligerents, he is acting, by such a proposition, just the same as if he should refuse to agree to the abolition of the African Slave-trade, except and unless upon the condition that all Slavery, in every State, and especially in the North American States, should also be, at the same time, abolished. Whether Mr. MARCY would agree, in this latter case, to such an extension of the humanity principle, analogous as it is to his own reasoning, is somewhat doubtful. At all events, there is some justice in Lord BROUGHAM'S argument.

These and other matters of other kinds, may probably be touched upon by the Paris Congress of the European Powers, but they will not, we may be sure, constitute the real object of this great meeting.

Slave Insurrections.

The Charleston Mercury and the New-York Commercial Advertiser complain that information with regard to insurrections of slaves has several times come to them by telegraph which has not been confirmed by the newspapers when received from the same localities by mail. The falsity of the telegraphic reports is taken for granted, and the Standard demands a censorship of the telegraph.

To-day we have received private advices from two different quarters in the Slave States, giving particulars of insurrectionary movements and of the means used to suppress them. In each case several negroes were executed on suspicion, or for the purpose of terrorizing the rest, and great consternation and excitement are represented to exist among all the white population. The newspapers of both these districts are entirely silent with regard to these events, and make light of the reports of the same character which they have received from other districts.

The same newspapers, it is well to remark, two months ago, exhibited the strongest inclination to plunge the country into civil war in the event of Col. FREMONT'S election. These occurrences show in what condition they were to execute their threats.

The truth is, the Southern Press is everywhere under a censorship, such as that which is demanded, and generally maintained, over the Telegraph—an irresponsible censorship, under a police, of which every slave-owner is a member—a thousand times more rigorous and effective than that of France.

During all the recent election canvass, there probably were not three newspapers in the Slave States which ever gave, even by intimation, to their readers, any true information with regard to the objects of the Republican Party, or the views relative to Slavery of its nominee.

A Southern editor a short time ago informed us that a valuable job of advertising had been taken from him and transferred to a rival paper of much less circulation, and when he asked the reason of the change he was referred to certain brief paragraphs which he had copied from the Times and Herald, as items of news, in which some demonstrations of Northern sentiment against the repeal of the Missouri Compromise were described.

As there are few rival lines of telegraph at the South, and these are chiefly supported by Northern merchants and newspapers, it is found that some special means of constraint upon the operators is needed. The Richmond Whig of Tuesday says: "We believe that all the insurrectionary movements at the South is the natural and necessary effect of the course pursued by the Democratic Party in the late canvass. And, what is more, we believe that all the blood which has been shed by the whites in self-defence, in some portions of the country, rests upon the heads of the reckless demagogues of the Buccaneer Democracy."

MUSIC AND EDUCATION.—Attention has been drawn, in many ways, to the relations of Musical culture to common Education, but the subject is again recommended to notice by the action of the Board of Education of this City, by whose invitation Mr. R. S. WILLIS has just delivered a series of public lectures on Music, as connected with Education. A suggestion for the establishment of a School of Music in New-York, is one that will bear to be pondered carefully, and will be received with favorable regard by a very large class of our citizens.

INSANITY IN ENGLAND.—The ARROWSMITH hoax appears to have been revived again in England, the author of the original letter having appeared with another in the Times, in which he asserts that the statements in his first letter were all true. John Bull is rather muddled by the affair, and appears inclined to take sides with ARROWSMITH. Mr. BRADY would not have much difficulty in establishing a case of insanity here.

A BATCH OF VETOES.—Mayor WOOD closed up his dealings with the old Common Council yesterday by vetoing three bills, the most important of which was the ordinance for the tax levy of 1857. The cause for this veto was the omission of the appropriation of $200,000 for the improvement of the Central Park, which the new Common Council will doubtless supply.

INAUGURATION OF THE NEW STATE OFFICERS.—The oath of office will be administered to Gov. King and Lieut.-Gov. SELDEN about 12 o'clock to-day in the Assembly Chamber at Albany. After the ceremony, the Governor will receive the congratulations of his friends in the Executive Chamber.

THE GREAT "LADY"-KILLER.—Col. BENTON has been called Old Bullion for the past twenty years; but hereafter he ought to be called the "Lady"-Killer, since his attempt to kill off that much abused word has fairly entitled him to the appellation.

Relief for the Family of the Murdered Man, Cornelius Cannon.

We have received a communication in relation to a subscription for the family of CANNON, who was murdered on Sunday night in Brooklyn; it is accompanied with the sum of $27, contributed by the employes in the American Exchange Bank of this City. The communication is a most generous one, and the suggestion of a subscription is every way commendable. But we think it would be better that the money should be sent to the Mayor of Brooklyn, or to some person appointed by a committee to receive contributions. It would be a serious inconvenience to us to act as the treasurer in such a case, and we shall forward the money that has been sent to us to any person who may be designated hereafter as an agent in the matter.

German Opera.

One of the best operas in the repertoire of the German Opera Company now at the Broadway Theatre, is WEBER'S "Der Freischutz." Its proportions are sufficient to call into play all the abilities of the artists, without being too excessive for their strength. And then the chorus and orchestra appear to understand their work, and do it with admirable precision and effect. This opera was given last night with all the advantages offered by, and was of course eminently successful. It is the next-to-last of German Opera, and Fatherland is prodigiously proud of it.

We refer to its production on this occasion simply to notice the admirable way in which it has been put on the stage. There are opportunities for scenic display in this work, which are seldom seized in the proper spirit because they lie out of the ordinary track. More than once, the music has been jeopardized by the lugubrious attempt of the scene-painter to interpret the romantic element. The incantation scene is a perpetual stumbling-block and cannot be obliterated with a pound brush. This was not so last night. We have never seen in this country a more spacious and satisfactory "Wolf's Glen," or diablerie more effectually managed. We are not partial to fire-works on the stage, but when the smoke is used judiciously as it was last night, namely, to cover the apparition of the demon huntsmen, we are disposed to forgive their popping and fizzing. There was a slight hitch in the machinery. When this is overcome we are sure the incantation will more than satisfy a critical audience.

Personal.

Mr. WILLIAM HENRY SMITH, who has recently published a pamphlet in England, claiming for BACON the authorship of SHAKESPEARE'S plays, or at least a large participation therein, is following up the subject by the delivery of lectures in support of his theory.

Hon. STEPHEN A. MALLORY has been reelected a Senator of the United States from the State of Florida for six years from the 4th of March next.

A widow in Louisville, Chickasaw County, Miss., has a pet hog, presented to her by her son, who is in the coming year, weighing 1,000 pounds.

"It happened to my lot on a occasion, that might be represented as a railroad car that had been thrown from the track under a high rate of speed, smashed in pieces, and then gathered up in fragments, just in these chance relations into which accident had thrown them. The materials of a complete and beautiful car were there, (with the exception of the brakes,) but they were hauled out of the mass, and put together very much like those cattle that Dr. TUPPO tells the children about, as the inhabitants of a chance world. The sermon was learned, poetical, disjointed, pedantic, powerful, brilliant, humorous, witty, explosive, redundant, English, Greek, Latin, and Dr. Cox."

Obituary.

The late FRANCIS C. GRAY, of Boston, was the son of the famous WILLIAM GRAY, the merchant; graduated at Cambridge in 1809, studied law with Hon. WM. PRESCOTT, was private Secretary to John Quincy ADAMS when he was Minister to Russia, an early contributor to the North American Review, author of various orations and historical papers, member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and its Corresponding Secretary; President of the Boston Athenæum; a Trustee of the State Lunatic Hospital at Worcester, and of the Massachusetts General Hospital, and a Fellow of Harvard College from 1826 to 1836. Also, frequently a member of the Legislature. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by Harvard College in 1841.

☞ Elder JOHN T. JOHNSON, an eminent divine of Kentucky, died at Lexington, Mo., on the 14th December, of pneumonia. Mr. JOHNSON was a native of Scott County, and a younger brother of the distinguished R. M. JOHNSON, formerly Vice-President. He was educated for the bar, and while a lawyer enjoyed a large and lucrative practice. During his residence in Georgetown, he represented that District in Congress in 1821, 1822, 1823, 1824 and 1825.

Elder JOHN T. JOHNSON, of Kentucky, one of the most distinguished preachers of the "Reformation," died at Lexington, Mo., on Thursday, 18th December. He was one of the most distinguished and successful Ministers of the Gospel in the Western country. In early life he was a lawyer and politician. He served as an officer in the war of 1812, and was at the siege of Fort Meigs.

Col. THOMAS F. HURT, Assistant-Quartermaster General, U. S. A., died at New-Orleans on the 23d December. He had been stationed at New-Orleans for many years. During the Mexican war his duties as Quartermaster were arduous, and he discharged them with a degree of ability and energy that elicited the approbation of the War Department.

☞ We regret to hear of the death of Mrs. P. LYNCH, wife of the editor of the Irish American, she died in Brooklyn, on Tuesday morning, after a brief illness.

Tax-Receiver's Office.

Yesterday was a busy day at the Tax-Receiver's Office. The announcement that all taxes unpaid on 1st January, would have an addition of interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum, calculated from the 10th of last September, added thereto, had the effect to bring forward hosts of delinquents. The office was crowded from early morning till early gas-lighting. To give all parties a fair opportunity to avoid the future payment of the additional per centage, the Tax-Receiver kept the office open at a later hour than usual. At one time during the day the file of parties waiting their turn to make their respective payments, extended fifty or sixty feet outside the entrance into the Park.

The payment of taxes commenced on the 19th of last September. The aggregate amount paid in up to last evening, is $6,209,169 77. Of this amount there was paid in September, $1,008,312 99; in October, $1,365,184 51; in November, $2,334,669 26; in December, $1,000,000. In addition to the above there remains to be paid in, about $300,000, which will bring the sum collected to $7,000,000, as called for in the original tax levy. The amount of tax money paid for the year 1855 was $4,783,000. It is encouraging to learn that the tax for the present year is not quite twice the tax for last year.

Another Chapter in the Baker Case.

Pursuant to notice served on the District-Attorney, Lewis BAKER and his co-defendants were brought, by writ of habeas corpus, yesterday morning, before one of the Judges of the Supreme Court. Application was made by Messrs. JAMES T. BRADY, DANIEL E. SICKLES, and JOHN H. MCCUNN, of counsel, to bail the defendants.

District-Attorney HALL appeared on the return, and said substantially, that considering that six jurors upon each Jury had substantially acquitted him, and the remaining six upon each Jury were what else to agree as to what crime he was guilty of, and considering that with each trial the evidence for the prosecution accumulated in his favor; and that on the last trial a perfectly unexceptionable Jury passed on the testimony, he (the District-Attorney) should not oppose the application to bail, but ask that it be fixed at a sum commensurate with the case. The further conduct of the matter he should advise about with his friend, the Attorney-General.

The bail was then fixed at $5,000 each defendant, but only LEWIS BAKER gave bail, with JAMES MCCUNN, of No. 214 Fifth-avenue, a brother-in-law of Mr. MCCUNN, as security.

This will not release JAMES TERRY or MCLAUGHLIN, as they are under another indictment in the General Sessions, for felonious assault—the trial being now about to be brought on.

BAKER and HUNTINGDON have been occupying a cell together, and both leave it together. One went to the County Sheriff—the other goes to Sing Sing, which is locked full some time. One drawn a blank, the other a legal prize for the public, and are pursuing other lottery and lottery of trials by Jury now-a-days.

Baker's counsel-in-chief were hoping against in advance of his release from his Tombs confinement. The news of his release quickly spread among all the bar-rooms and cyster saloons of the City, and was the prevailing talk during the afternoon and evening. The frequenters of these places were free in offering bets that BAKER would be no further punished. One or two offered odds that in less than three months time he would be recaptured by the police. Considerable anxiety prevailed to get a sight of the face of the Poole translation. It was seen mentioned that Joe Bowman, Joe Ferry, Daniel Sullivan, Gouverneur Kimmelmann, and two or three others of the old confreres had him in keeping. During the evening the old round of haunts were visited, including Jeremy Rogers, from which point our disappointed fellow-citizens went to spend the night with Joe Browne, Esq. Dan Pooley's speech reached last night.

City Mortality of the Year Past.

Though the population of the City has increased, by a large per centage during the last five years, the mortality, for the last two or three has fallen off. The total number of deaths the last year was 21,102, being about 1,800 less than in 1855, and 2,000 less than 1854. Consumption, as usual, carried off the largest number, the victims reaching 2,402. Fevers of various kinds proved fatal to 2,089; inflammation to 1,570; convulsions to 1,469; and marasmus to 1,401. 1,756 were still-born; dropsy included 1,139; the catalogue of those who died, showed 16,000 were natives of the United States; 5,150 foreigners; 450 colored, and 152 unknown.

EXPENSIVE STEAMBOATS.—The emigration this year has exceeded that of last year considerably, but is still much less than of any previous year since 1854. The number of emigrants is 241,000; there were 45,000 from Ireland; 76,000 from Germany, and 21,000 from England. The total number of passengers that have arrived at this port during the year is 184,000.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

DEAKIN'S FLORAL MAGAZINE. Published by Fowler and Wells, New-York. Vol. 10. JANUARY, 1857. New Series, No. 1. 24 Pages in Advance.

PART OF CONTENTS: Work for the Month.—A beautiful, instructive article. Calendar of Operations for January.—A useful focus of work to be done in the field, orchard, garden, green and hot-houses, interspersed with many valuable hints. This is a special feature of this journal, and "The Calendar" lays out one's work before him, and materially aids and systematizes his plans. Ashes for manuring. Asparagus.—Full chapter on culture, perhaps most complete yet written. Bee Hives.—Minute directions for making cheap, or better, unpatented ones. Bread-Making.—An excellent chapter. Cabbages.—Wintering Cows.—The Kind, Fitting. Cranberries.—Full details of a large successful grower's experience. Eggs.—Two good articles on securing in Winter, &c. Evergreens.—From seed. Fencing.—Discussed. Garden of a Chemistan.—Interesting chapter from experience. Garden of a Mechanic.—A large two-column cut, showing laying-out, place of trees, plants, vegetables, &c. A capital thing for all owners of small plots. Grafting and Budding.—Excellent plan. Grape Culture. No. 1.—The first of a full series by an experienced grower. Hams.—Two good pickles. Horse-Racing.—Agricul. Press on. Horses.—Black Hawk (illustrated.) Horses.—Foll Evil cured. Manures. No. 1.—The fir of a series of thorough practical articles. Manures.—N. J. Maria. Manures.—A humbug and instructive cut, showing how some of the "Special Manures" are supposed to be "got up." Milking Machine.—Amusing account of an attempt to use one. Oyster Plant.—Two ways to cook. Pea.—The Japan. Peach Worms.—Keeping and planting. Pear.—Mines without apples. Pomological Society.—American; Fruits adopted, &c. Poudrette.—Farmers' trial. Premiums.—Agr. journals for. Rainy-Day Humble at Neighbor Thomas', No 2. Rhubarb, or Pie Plant.—Full chapter on culture, &c. Roots in Pots.—Directions for growing, with beautiful cut. Seed Drains in Winter. Sporry Dare.—Work. Strawberries, No. 1.—By a practical grower. The first of a full series to be continued through the year, with appropriate monthly directions. Sugar-Cane.—Chinese—More about this interest. Tree planting (300 to 400 seeds to be distributed free to each subscriber sending a ready-directed stamped envelope.) Trees.—Digging holes for. Turnips.—How raised cheaply. Verbena.—Chapter on. &c., &c., &c., &c., &c., &c.

ONLY ONE. N. B.—The above is an outline of ONLY ONE Number, and that got up under the excitement and bustle of attending to nearly 10,000 new subscribers, letters of inquiry, &c. Eleven More numbers equally good, and as much better as possible, will be furnished this year; and the capital December No. (1856) will be furnished free to 3,000 new subscribers for 1857, first received.

ONLY ONE. N. B.—At least 200 perfect seeds of the new Chinese Sugar Cane will be sent FREE to every old or new subscriber to THE AGRICULTURIST who furnishes a ready directed (post-paid) envelope to mail them in.

ONLY ONE. N. B.—THE AGRICULTURIST is located at the Metropolitan City of the country—the best point for getting the best information from every section.

ONLY ONE. N. B.—THE AGRICULTURIST surpasses all other similar journals, in having, besides its Resident Conducting Editor, an Associate Editor at EACH of several points in the Eastern, Middle and Western States, a dozen of these men, who are thoroughly going Practical Cultivators, Fruit-growers, Stock-raisers, &c., are constantly furnishing to THE AGRICULTURIST their combined experience and observations in their several localities. This arrangement gives this journal UNEQUALED advantages for diffusing the very best practical information collected from each division of the country.

ONLY ONE. Every FARMER, MERCHANT, MECHANIC or PROFESSIONAL MAN, who is annually expending $1,000, $500, $200, $100, or but $50 or $20, upon his Farm, Orchard, Garden, or House-plot, or upon his Animals, will do well to expend a single dollar a year more in supplying himself with THE AGRICULTURIST. From its full 500 good articles given every year, no one can fail to derive at least some hints that will be worth to him many times the cost.

ONLY ONE. TRY it a year—It will PAY.

ONLY ONE. in the Tribune of Nov. 27, 1856, Mr. Greeley said: "The American Agriculturist is a large double quarto, seasonably and industriously edited, and is particularly savage on all attempts to cheat the farmers with fabricated manures. Whoever takes this paper will receive his money's worth."

ONLY ONE. THE INDEPENDENT. A WEEKLY RELIGIOUS AND FAMILY NEWSPAPER. Circulation nearly 30,000, and Continually Increasing. This journal, in addition to its large corps of Editors, has permanently engaged the following distinguished persons as REGULAR CONTRIBUTORS: REV. GEORGE B. CHEEVER, D. D., REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER, MRS. HARRIET BEECHER STOWE, MR. CHARLES L. BRACE, And numerous others. CORRESPONDENTS From all sections of the Union; and from England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and the Holy Land, contribute to enrich the columns of THIS JOURNAL.

ONLY ONE. A NEW VOLUME begins with the New Year, printed throughout with new copper-faced type on a four-cylinder press, and on clear, white paper—making, from week to week, a handsome sheet, legible to the oldest eyes.

ONLY ONE. THE INDEPENDENT For the coming year will present, in addition to the former plan of the paper, an entirely new feature, and one of great value, particularly to literary readers—viz.: A Digest or Résumé of the Periodical Literature of Europe, especially in the departments of Theology, Sacred Philology, and Philosophy.

ONLY ONE. A department of Practical Horticulture will also be furnished, which cannot fail to be appreciated by all lovers of Flowers.

ONLY ONE. The departments of Literature and Art will be conducted as heretofore; the latter under the direction of a gentleman well schooled in Art, and whom the leading artists of this City recognize as a competent and candid critic.

ONLY ONE. But the great and leading aim of the editors and proprietors of The Independent is to make a Religious Journal, in which all these departments shall be subordinate to the one great end of religious instruction, the propagation of the principles of the Gospel, and their application to the practical duties of common life, as well to the great public questions of the age.

ONLY ONE. CONTENTS OF THIS WEEK'S NUMBER. The following will serve to indicate the variety of the contents of the present number: "This Year Also;" by Dr. Cheever; the Parable of the Barren Fig Tree made applicable to the New Year. "Thoughts on the Close of the Year," by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher; a rich, suggestive article. "Letters on Art;" giving a paper, this week, on "Varieties of Form." "A Word from India;" an interesting letter from a Missionary in the Madura District. "The Society Library;" a brief historical account of this institution, showing rise to its present condition and advantages. "English Traits and Incidents;" a letter of interesting incidents, from our English correspondent. "Letter from Washington," from our regular correspondent. "A Sabbath in Aspinwall." "Letter from Cape Cod." "Incidents among the Poor;" by Charles L. Brace. "Religious Intelligence;" a condensed but comprehensive digest of the news of the churches, of all religious denominations, both at home and abroad, such as Congregational, Presbyterian, Baptist, Episcopal, Methodist, Reformed Dutch, Unitarian, &c. "Literary Record;" being a mention from week to week of new books published. "Domestic Summary;" a carefully prepared condensation of the secular news of the day. "Editorial Articles;" "The New-Year;" "Turkey, Russia and the South," showing from official documents that less religious freedom is now secured by law in the South than in Russia and Turkey; "Questions and Answers;" "Liturgical;" "Dr. Kirk's Mission to Paris;" "A New Proposal," a consideration of a scheme for a federal union of the Anti-Slavery churches in this country; "Warning to Postmasters;" and other articles. "Commercial and Financial;" giving a list of the business firms in this country that have failed during the past week. "England and France—A Dissolving Alliance and Mystery of Iniquity;" a thorough and elaborate letter from an English Correspondent. "The New-Year"—A Poem. By Theodore Tilton. "Shadows and Sunshine." "The Weather in the Holy Land." "The 'Morning Star in a Storm,'" for the children. "Life a Mysterious Principle;" by Rev. R. S. Storrs, Jr., D.D. "Our New-Year's Bouquet;" an interesting Horticultural article. "Foreign Miscellany;" a column of interesting foreign intelligence. "Editors' Book Table;" containing a review of Rev. Dr. Stowe's "Graham Lectures," and of other recent issues of the press. "City Religious News;" comprising intelligence not to be found in any other paper. "Foreign Intelligence;" giving a digest of the Europa's news.

STUDIES IN THE FIELD AND FOREST. BY WILSON FLAGG. "All that the gentle ray of morning gilds, And all that echoes to the music of even." 1 vol. 12mo. Price, $1. From the North American Review. These papers indicate an artist's eye and a poet's susceptibility; careful observation of nature, and familiarity with the canons and models of constructive and ornamental art. Without, they are written in a highly attractive style, marked by simplicity and earnestness, and adapting itself with easy grace to the theme in hand. From the Salem Gazette. The most exquisite descriptions of rural still life which our language has produced.

"A model of neatness."—New-York Evening Post. THE NEW-YORK ALMANAC AND WEATHER BOOK FOR 1857. Containing as much matter as an ordinary $1 25 volume. Price, in cloth, 25 cents. "This little work contains a fund of valuable and varied information, suited to the wants of persons in all parts of the country."—N. Y. Messenger. "It is particularly rich in meteorological observations and weather articles, which are prepared by E. Merriam, the clerk of the weather."—Boston Journal. "It is at once a Calendar and a Diary; a complete record of the temperature, a complete manual of the weather, and independently of all this, it supplies a variety of useful information on almost every subject."—N. Y. Dispatch. "It is especially abundant in City information, and about everything we want to know in that way can be found in this little book."—N. Y. Express. "Mr. E. Merriam is the gentleman who lives and moves in a forest of thermometers and wet bulbs, and from his eyrie on Brooklyn Heights, swoops down upon the public with his wet, dry and cold 'terms.' But this is not his sole employment, as the little work before us attests. Mr. Meriam is, evidently, a perfect gormandizer of facts; show him a crooked stump in Oskatonhes Swamp, and he will refer you to its exact mate in Ompompanoosuch forest. He knows every fact, apparently, worth knowing, and can refer to the record of it, made at the time of observing. Accidents from camphene, gunpowder and lightning, he keeps a list of, and the result of his labors, in this line, among a thousand other things, equally curious, and elsewhere unrecorded, may be found in this little volume."—Buffalo Express. For sale by booksellers generally. Published by MASON BROTHERS, Nos. 108 and 110 Duane-st., New-York.

Mr. Richard S. Willis' course of Medical Lectures, for the benefit of Education is concluded. The last lecture included the delivery of the speaking voice. The principal vices of speech, arising from a neglect of the vocal mechanism, were analyzed and the remedies pointed out. The fault of our American speech, amounting to Mr. Willis, is its nasality. Yet this is so apparent in many speakers and singers, that it is only the act of talking through the nose that is wanting to give them that peculiar resonance which is peculiar to the French language. The remedy for this defect is, to open the mouth, force the tongue, and raise the veil of the palate. The pure tone of a nasal quality in our speech will go far towards rectifying it. The lecturer urged the importance of a cultivation of the aesthetics of the subject, and showed that the fundamental training of the speaking voice of the pupil should have its place in our system of instruction; for nothing more immediately subserves the refinement of culture than the tones of the voice and the every-day articulation of speech. Many persons have a drawling tone of voice which is to be deprecated,—there are the lamentating, the religious, the bellying drawl—all bad and wrong voices. A drawling tone is the pulpit or the elocutionist for common, and cannot be too strongly condemned. To prove agreeable talkers, we need a correct articulation of the voice in elocution. Mr. Willis believed that singing is a remedy for many of our inaccuracies of pronunciation; regarded it as a question whether the tone of voice did not influence the mental condition; and held it to be no trivial accomplishment to be able to speak our own language in fluent tones and with a clear articulation. And, Mr. Willis said, in school is always an incentive to study.

The lecturer urged that the cultivation of music is an important aid to the acquisition of foreign languages. To acquire another language is more than a work of the ear than of the brain, and anything which cultivates a knowledge of the nice distinctions of sound is an aid. The tone of a language is quite as important as the grammar. While in Germany, he made the acquaintance of a distinguished linguist, who was thoroughly versed in the principles of the English language, and congratulated himself that he could travel in any country where it was spoken, and could converse with the people in their native tongue. He then went to London, and though he knew the words and could put them in the right place, he yet had not the tone of the language, and could scarcely make those around him understand a word. We see this principle illustrated in the case of Irish servants, who often ask a question in the tone we use in answering one, so that we are compelled to ask him what he says.

Mr. Willis closed with earnestly recommending upon the attention of the Board of Education the subject of a system of normal instruction in music, which should send out competent teachers; the demand for which is very large—larger than can be supplied.

At the conclusion of the lecture, Wm. C. Bryant, Esq., made a few remarks in warm commendation of the plan for uniting music with education. He said: For my part, I find that the music transfigures the words, invests them with a sort of supernatural splendor, making them call up deeper emotions and conveying more vivid images. The class of which I am speaking require for their enjoyment of music a very little simplicity—certain aids which bring it down to their level. And yet, on that level, not only taste, but art and genius, if we are to judge music by the same rules which we apply to the other fine arts, may find an ample field for their exercise. Some of the finest productions of literature are those which are written with the greatest simplicity, and address themselves to the greatest number of minds. I suppose, therefore, that I may conclude what I have to say with an earnest testimony to the importance, in behalf of that subject of which it belongs, for having so well stated our wants, and so clearly pointed out, in his admirable indications of Home Music, the means of providing for them.

Mr. Randall read the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Company be and hereby are tendered to Mr. Willis, for his highly eloquent and instructive course of lectures; also to Mr. Bryant, for his address; and to Mr. Aptomas, Professor Conrad, Mr. Hall, and to the Misses Flury and the young ladies of the Daily Normal School, for the pleasure and instruction they have afforded us during the present course of lectures.

How to Rise in the World.—Young men should be temperate, active, courteous, prompt, careful, persevering, honorable, honest, respectful, generous, and should thoroughly "Know Themselves." Phrenology teaches self-knowledge, and with it all the Christian graces, together with the modus operandi of rising in the world. Hon. Horace Mann says: "I look upon Phrenology as the guide to Philosophy and the handmaid to Christianity. Whoever disseminates true Phrenology is a public benefactor." Rev. Henry Ward Beecher says: "If a man wishes to know practically what he is made up of; if a man wishes a knowledge of human nature for definite practical purposes, there is no system which will aid him in acquiring that knowledge like the system of Phrenology." Practical instructions, with written description of character, given daily at Fowlers and Wells', No. 308 Broadway.

LONG ISLAND.

Naval Affairs.

The frigate Niagara's engines are about completed, and Tuesday she was to have been taken out of dock, preparatory to having steam applied to-day, to test the propeller and machinery; but it having been discovered that the flanges of the propeller were too wide by six inches to allow of its being hoisted and lowered with facility, the trial has been necessarily delayed for another week. Men are employed night and day in getting the work in readiness.

The work of refitting the sloop-of-war Falmouth is rapidly progressing; she will be sent either to the coast of Africa, or possibly be put into special service and sent to Annapolis for the Naval School.

The officers of the sloop-of-war Falmouth have reported for service; she goes to Brazil to relieve the Germantown.

The Wabash is reported to have been seizure in the bay of Aspinwall, and received some severe pounding, but the extent of damage to her is not known.

The steamer Mississippi has been greatly improved by the alterations in her exterior and interior arrangements. Her guards have been raised four feet, and her cabin, which was on deck is put below. She has two vertical tube iron boilers in place of the four copper ones, and she is now said to be capable of performing any service required—that she can go anywhere—in any weather. It has been suggested she could not be better employed than in looking after the numerous vessels hovering upon our coast in a crippled condition, and unable to reach port from the loss of spars and the disabled state of their crews. Several of this class have already been reported, one of which, the brig Whitehall, having once been in tow of a steamer, but parted from her by a gale, and has been since spoken with her spars gone, and the crew frostbitten. There can be no more important or acceptable service rendered to commerce, or to the cause of suffering humanity than the relief of these distressed vessels. Within the last week as many as half a dozen crews have been rescued off sinking vessels by others accidentally falling in with them; how many have gone down for the want of timely aid it is impossible to say.

The Arctic is the only vessel now at the Navy Yard relied on for medium calls, such as heading off filibusters, and catching slavers, and yet she is totally unfit for such service. It is doubtful if steam enough could be got upon her to stem a northwest blow in December; and to expect her to be of any service in heading off a fleet steamer, or even a fast-sailing schooner, is simply absurd.

Steamer Fulton is repairing her boilers, which have become the worse for wear.

The United States Naval Lyceum will dispatch a mail from New-York for the United States Naval squadron in the Mediterranean. All letters and papers sent to the Lyceum Rooms, Navy Yard, Brooklyn, will be forwarded. The ships on the above station are frigate Congress, razee Constellation, and steam frigate Susquehanna. The mail will close on the 5th of January next.

Preparing for New-Year's.

A young man, named Henry Sparrow, was brought before Justice Smith, in Brooklyn, yesterday morning, by officer Parr, of the Second District Police, charged with stealing a carcass of mutton from a store at the corner of Fulton and Market streets. He was convicted and sent to the Penitentiary for 60 days.

Two boys arrested by the same officer for stealing four pair of boots from store No. 37 James-street, were sent to the House of Refuge.

Dangerous Experiment.

A boy named Charles Hentteller yesterday morning fell from the third story of a house on South, near Atlantic-street, Brooklyn, to the pavement, a distance of 35 feet. He got up and walked off as though nothing had happened. A clothes line broke his fall.

New-Year's Gift.

The formal presentation of a house to Mayor Hall, and a service of silver plate to John E. Carstairs, Esq., took place at the Packer Institute, Brooklyn, last night.

Boiler Explosion.

A boiler in the Lime Yard of Thomas Bell, at the foot of Amity-street, Brooklyn, exploded yesterday afternoon, blowing out the side of the building in which it was located; but fortunately no person was injured.

Coal.

A lady had a portemonnaie stolen from her pocket Tuesday evening, while looking into a shop window on Fulton-street, Brooklyn. The thief was a woman.

Accident.

Mrs. L. Huntington, of Adelphi-street, Brooklyn, had one of her legs broken yesterday, by falling upon the sidewalk in Fulton-street.

☞ A boy named Charles Graham amused himself Tuesday evening by upsetting ash barrels on Fulton-street, Brooklyn. He was arrested by Officer Hyde of the First District Police, and after a good sleep in the cells was yesterday morning brought before Justice Daniel E. Smith and fined $5, which a friend paid for him, and he went on his way rejoicing.

☞ There were two fires in Brooklyn yesterday morning—one in the rear of Atlantic, near Willow-street, in a building owned by Walter Kelsey, and the other in the grocery store of James McCue, No. 79 Tillary-street, neither of which resulted in much damage.

☞ The body of an infant, only a few weeks old, was found yesterday morning, in the Flushing-avenue sewer, near the Navy-Yard wall, Brooklyn, by the Fourth District Police. The Coroner was summoned, but no owner was found for it.

☞ There is not an omnibus, or any other public accommodation for travelers, on Atlantic-street, Brooklyn. Here is a fine opening for some enterprising man.

☞ A wealthy citizen of Brooklyn, on Christmas Day, distributed $25,000 among his nephews and nieces.

There was a very pleasant gathering at the house of Mr. J. B. Steele on Monday evening, Dec. 29, when a handsome silver pitcher was presented, by the young men of the house of Henry Smith & Townsend, to Mr. B. A. McDonald, who retires to-day, after thirteen years' connection with the firm. The plate, inscribed appropriately, was presented with an address on the part of the givers, by Mr. Steele. Mr. McDonald responded happily, after which all parties sat down to a sumptuous supper. Mr. McDonald has made an arrangement with the well-known house of Stimpson & Morris, piano-forte manufacturers. From his extensive acquaintance throughout the South and West, we predict for him every success.

NEW-JERSEY.

City Prison Report.

During December, 1856, there were 67 commitments to the Jersey City Prison, for offences, as follows:

Drunkenness	54	Burglary	3
Assaults	10	Stealing	3
Violating city ordinances	2	Insanity	1
Vagrancy	2	Keeping disorderly house	1
Disorderly conduct	2	Fighting	1
Malicious mischief	2	Suspicion of theft	1
Total			67

Their places of nativity are as follows: Ireland, 55; Germany, 8; England, 12; United States, 11; Colored, 1. Total, 67.

The New Ferry-House.—The new ferry-house on the New-York side of the Jersey City ferry is now completed, and yesterday the last remaining vestiges of the old building were removed. A portion of this building was erected three years ago, and the remainder of it has been built during the past season. The structure has a front 160 feet in extent, and extends towards the river 180 feet. It is entirely covered by a substantial roof. It is Italian in style, and very convenient in plan. In the centre of the front there are two passage-ways for foot passengers, so arranged that the ferry masters can receive fairings of the throng of people usually passing in. There is a large passenger room for the accommodation of those who will be boats. It is lighted by two skylight windows. There are two large passage-ways for teams, so arranged that teams can drive in and relieve the street from blockage while waiting for the boats. An office for the sale of tickets to Philadelphia by the New-Jersey Railroad, and another office for the sale of tickets to way stations on the New-Jersey Railroad, and for the branch roads, is also provided in the front of the building, and ample accommodations have been furnished for baggage or freight. Between the front of the building and West-street is a space, in by 180 feet in extent, for ferry boats, greatly facilitating the business. The cost of the building, it is said, will be about $80,000. The architect and builder is Mr. John Hall, of Jersey City, who has done himself much credit in the plan of the building and manner of construction. He has, meantime, partially erected the great depot of the same Company on the New-Jersey side of the Hudson, and will now push that forward to completion.

Wednesday, Dec. 31—P. M.

The Fulton arrived to-day, with dates from Havre to the 17th, and Southampton to the morning of the 18th inst. Her accounts are four days later than those previously received by the Europa. The safety of the Hermann is among the most gratifying items of the Fulton's news. The financial advices from London are of a cheering nature. Capital, though in good request, was readily available, on first-class securities, at former rates. Consols were in demand and left off at 93⅜@93⅝ ex dividend, with, however, a little weakness in the market. Foreign securities were moderately dealt in at essentially unchanged prices. From Liverpool we have reports of a vigorous business in Cotton at firmer, though not higher quotations, with increased depression in Breadstuffs—Western Canal Flour having fallen 6d. ₽ barrel; Wheat generally 2d. ₽ bushel; and Indian Corn 3d. ₽ quarter, since the sailing of the Europa, without inducing a better inquiry. American Provisions were quiet, but firm. From Paris the news is of continued stringency in money matters, with a further decline of a half cent in prices of French Three ₽ Cents., which closed, on the 16th inst., at 66f. for money, and 66f. 30c. for the end of the month. The London Times of the 17th inst. says:

"A fall of more than 3 ₽ cent. has thus been witnessed since the early part of the month. Neither the tone of the financial letters nor the position of the Bank of France is such as to offer any explanation of it. The issue of fresh obligations amounting to between £3,000,000 and £3,000,000 by the Strasburg and Western of France Railways, which are to be paid in full within three months, may probably have had some influence in causing the movement, and there are reports of the Government being likely to want money. The dispute between Prussia and Switzerland likewise seems to be viewed with a little uneasiness."

A few days' later intelligence from India and China reached London on the 16th inst. Manufactured Goods had been freely purchased at Calcutta at full prices. At Shanghae, the rate of exchange on London had fallen to 7s. 6d.@7s. 7d. The Fulton brings $280,000 in foreign coin, probably doubloons, for the West Indies.

The year goes out on a firm Stock Market. The fluctuations of the year have been unusually numerous, growing out of political as well as financial causes, and in some instances violent. For the past three business days and including the transactions to-day, there has been a remarkable steadiness, and on part of the list stiffness, in the dealings, directly against the current of the Money Market, which to Street borrowers was by common consent reported stringent up to 2 o'clock to-day. At the termination of bank hours, temporary loans appeared to come a little easier, and there is some confidence felt that a few days in the year will soon regulate and redistribute the means now locked up for dividend payments. We annex the prices of half-a-dozen leading Stocks on the Bond and Share list for the past three years as an index to the

We understand that Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co. bought for their friends in England, to-day, one million of the new Ohio Loan of 1886 from Messrs. H. A. Johnson & Co., the original takers. As Mr. Peabody is in the City, it has been intimated that his house in London participate in the purchase. The expectation of some such arrangement appears to have had an influence on Exchange for the packet of this week, as the whole amount will be drawn for at once.

In the notice of the change in the Banking House of Messrs. William Hoge & Co., yesterday, we should have added that the same firm is continued here by the Messrs. Hoge and Mr. Williamson, of Liverpool, and that the new firm at Liverpool will be Hoge & Williamson. The advertisements of all the parties appear on another page of this paper.

NEW-YORK CENTRAL ROAD—DEBT AND STOCK.

	1856. Sept. 30.	1855. Sept. 30.
Funded Debt	$14,763,897	$14,462,749
Less in Sinking Fund	470,000	313,000
Outstanding	$14,293,897	$14,149,849
Capital paid in	24,196,660	23,154,840
Total Debt and Stock	$38,490,557	$38,304,702

These are the official figures of the reports of the Company, affirmed by the executive officers and returned to the State Engineer's Department. They admit of no question. It is also affirmed to the Department that the Company had no floating debt outstanding at the close of either year, and there was certainly no part of the funded interest deferred. The management further state the income to the Stock for 1856 at 10.69 ₽ cent., or $2,568,731
And the surplus income of previous years, 586,187
Together $3,154,918
Of which paid in Dividends in 1856 1,919,564

And upon this statement, in its eagerness to depreciate this leading and productive estate, the New-York Herald asserts that the Road earned but five and a half, while dividing 8 ₽ cent. to the Stock. Now if this were so, the fact would be susceptible of easy proof without magnifying or mystifying either real or imaginary figures. The management added $1,262,459 to the Equipment, Station property and Structure of the Road, the whole of which they might have funded or capitalized within the year, as adding millions per annum to the permanent capacity of the work for freight traffic. But the Herald counts this as part of the ordinary operating expenses of the year, claiming that only $1,304,262 was left to divide upon. Yet we find that the sum of $1,919,564 was divided, and in cash, and only $125,855, or less than one-tenth of the actual permanent improvement put upon the property, added to the Capital and Debt Account, all told! The last of the half yearly dividends was paid out on the 20th of August. On the 30th of September the Company had $833,790 cash balance in Bank.

The above is from an advance proof-sheet from the office of the Railway Guide. The figure of December, 1856, has been revised from 23,242 miles to the actual roadway then opened to traffic, 21,069 miles, and the exact figure of the present roadway opened stated at 24,476, by adding the ascertained increase of 8,007 miles opened within the year 1856. In a note which we have from the compiler he says:

"I inclose you a copy of the summary page of our forthcoming annual supplement. It differs somewhat from the first proof, consequent on further inquiries. I believe it to be approximately correct. The reason of the difference you noted in its relation to former estimates of the Guide (that of last year particularly) is simply greater care in compilation, and the non-repetition of the same road under different names and in different States. The details which are contained in the supplement guarantee the present estimate."
